BANDIT SOUGHT ON MURDER CHARGE

OFFICE GIRL SLAIN WITH WOODEN BLOCK IN CHICAGO SUBURB

Companion Witness To Attack; Body Is Robbed

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Police and citizens searched the marshes and prairies of Blue Island, southwest suburb, today for a bandit who seized Laura Bucholz, 26-year-old office worker, beat her with a heavy club, and left her dying in a vacant lot a block from her home.

Miss Bucholz, who was returning home after night work downtown, died without regaining consciousness. Her skull had been beaten in by a heavy wooden block, found near her body which had been dragged several blocks from the street where the attack seized her.

The attack was witnessed by Mrs. Grace Hanley, a school teacher, who heard the young woman's screams and saw the attacker, whom she described as "a big man," dragging the lifeless body from the street into a clump of bushes.

Police, called by Mrs. Hanley, found Miss Bucholz body lying in a crumpled heap near a clump of bushes. The victim's hat and purse were missing leading police to believe that robbery was the motive for the attack. Physicians said the young woman had not been attacked.

Miss Bucholz was accompanied from work by Miss Grace McMullen. The two alighted from the suburban train together and separated only a short distance from the Bucholz home. Miss McMullen said no other passengers left the train at the Blue Island station.

Six weeks ago, Ewing refused the couple a divorce on the grounds that they might remarry and have more children. He was quoted as having ordered them to practice birth control.

George Robert Kelly, 58, president and general manager of The R. A. Kelly Co., local cordage factory, since 1901, died at his home, 101 W. Second St., at 4:30 o'clock Thursday morning. Death was attributed to heart trouble and climaxed a year of gradually failing health and a critical illness of the last ten days.

Throughout his long illness his courage was a source of constant amazement to his friends and attendants. Although he was resigned to the fact that his illness would probably be fatal, he craved life and struggled desperately to regain his old-time vigor.

Two of his oldest and best friends, George Galloway and Andrew Haninger, kept silent vigil not far from his bedside throughout the long hours of the night until the end came shortly after 4:30 a. m.

Mr. Kelly was born at Delaware, O., July 29, 1870. He was of pioneer stock—the son of the late Robert Alexander Kelly and Catherine Loretta Fisher Kelly. He invented many rope-making machines still in use.

City Manager W. R. Hopkins and former Common Pleas Judge Maurice Bernon, president of the Cleveland Bar Association, welcomed the lawyers at a breakfast luncheon this morning.

LEGISLATURE MAY PROBE BUS- INTERURBAN CROSSING TRAGEDY

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24.—The public utilities commission today was awaiting reports from its inspectors before taking definite action in connection with the Lake Shore interurban-bus crash near Bellevue, which cost nineteen lives.

Governor Myers Y. Cooper, suggested during a conference with the commissioners, that henceforth traction cars should be required to stop at grade crossings where serious wrecks have occurred.

The governor said he "would give immediate attention to the matter of devising safeguards." Motor buses are required to stop at crossings but the rule was not made to include all traction cars and trains.

The possibility of a legislative inquiry loomed today as Rep. J. C. Edlich, Cleveland, announced he would reintroduce his resolution asking for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the Bellevue crash and another at Dayton which cost four lives.

The resolution was brought up yesterday but was deferred for re-introduction today.

Edlich's committee would be instructed to draft legislation providing for the elimination of dangerous crossings and provide safeguards against other serious accidents in the future.

Four inspectors from the utilities commission were assigned to investigate the Bellevue crash.

Bellevue, O., Jan. 24.—Officials of the Lake Shore Electric Lines and the Greyhound Bus Lines today continued their probe into the accident Tuesday afternoon in which nineteen persons lost their lives and fourteen others were seriously injured in a grade crossing crash east of here.

A coroner's investigation into the tragedy has been set for February 1 and on the outcome of that will depend whether or not the Huron County grand jury will conduct an investigation.

As agitation increased today for the elimination of the dangerous crossings where forty-four persons have been killed within the last few years, it was revealed that work to eliminate the crossing had been held up by a dispute over a land settlement involving $5,000.

Relatives of the bus passengers killed in the collision today continued to throng into Bellevue to claim bodies and to offer aid to the injured. Five of the nineteen dead remain to be identified. Four are men. In the hospitals here are four teen injured, eleven of them passengers of the ill-fated bus.

The version of the tragedy given by Edward Butler of Cleveland, driver of the bus, has been verified by some of the injured.

One of the crash victims, Teddy Obraski of Brooklyn, who died early Wednesday of injuries, told Police Chief C. L. North shortly before he died that he had robbed banks in San Francisco and that he had $46,000 in a hidden cache along a river. He begged a nurse to get it for him.

After the accident Tuesday two messages addressed to Obraski were received from Brooklyn. Both were signed "Frances." Police believe the sender of the messages was Obraski's wife or mother and are seeking to notify her of his death.

The automobile was found and examinations disclosed a broken window and a blood spattered cushion.

RADICAL CHANGE IN TAX DISTRIBUTION WILL BE SUGGESTED

Governor Approves New
Uses For Gas Tax
Funds

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24.—A radical change will be made in the distribution of the gasoline tax receipts if the general assembly adopts a proposal submitted to Governor Cooper, tentatively approved by him, and to be presented to the law-makers in a bill by Rep. Laurence H. Norton, Cleveland, within the next ten days.

Under the present law the revenue derived from one cent of the tax goes to the state for the construction of new state highways. The receipts from the other two cents are divided among the municipalities.

The state gets 45 per cent for highway maintenance; the municipalities divide 30 per cent on the basis of automobile registration; and 25 per cent is divided equally among the eighty-eight counties.

The proposed distribution does not affect the portion that goes to the state for new highways. It will, however, cut the municipalities out of all participation in the receipts from the other two cents, giving all of this money to the state and the counties.

The 45 per cent now received by the state would be increased to 50 per cent, the additional 5 per cent to replace the money which will be lost by the proposed abolition of assessments against abutting property, one of the reforms proposed by Governor Cooper.

The other 50 per cent would be distributed among the counties, 15 per cent being divided on the basis of their motor registration, 15 per cent on basis of road mileage, and 20 per cent to be divided equally among all eighty-eight.

The proposed plan of distribution was submitted to Gov. Cooper, by representative Norton, Senator Walter G. Nickels, New Philadelphia, chairman of the senate highway committee, and Rep. Dallas Sullivan, Union County house highway committee chairman.

WELLESLEY PUPIL
KILLED BY TRUCK

WELLESLEY, Mass., Jan. 24.—Miss Helen H. Jones, 19, of Columbus, O., was almost instantly killed here last night when the bicycle which she was riding was struck by a motor truck.

Joseph Marinkofsky of Framingham, driver of the truck, was held on a technical charge of manslaughter pending an investigation.

Two hours later another call came, and a truck was sent for an additional supply of oxygen. The desperate fight began in earnest then, and for twenty-four hours oxygen was fed into the baby's lungs.

A weakened heart ended the fight, and members of the rescue squad, defeated in the fight that had meant so much to their commander, returned to the stations.

HEROIC EPISODE OF SEA WRITTEN WHEN THIRTY TWO SAVED

Is Captain's Second Rescue; Other Ships In Distress

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—A new chapter in the heroic sagas of the sea is being written today as Captain George Fried of the United States liner America ploughs his way to New York with the thirty-two members of the crew of the abandoned Italian freighter Florida, rescued in pitch darkness last night in a full gale upon the high seas 700 miles off the Virginia Capes.

The Florida itself, waterlogged, rudderless, and loaded with pine rich from Beaumont, Tex., enroute since January 19 to Italy, is probably at the bottom of the sea. It was listing badly when the last search light from the America swept from it as the rescue vessel headed for New York.

While Capt. Fried, with his 464 passengers and rescued crew of thirty-two were hurrying on the land, the American tanker, Dunedake, reported sinking 100 miles farther off the Virginia Capes, had effected temporary repairs and was limping into port in the Bermuda under her own power.

The British freighter Teesbridge, with a crew of thirty men, was stricken for last 300 miles east of Race, after ships which had sped to her rescue in response to an SOS summons failed to find any trace of her.

The rescue of the Florida's crew last night takes its place alongside the most heroic bits of seamanship in maritime annals. A factor which enhances its dramatic value is that it occurred on the night of the third anniversary of an almost equally heroic rescue by Capt. Antione under almost similar circumstances in the North Seas. Fried was then in charge of the United States liner President Roosevelt.

This was his radio message to the offices of the United States line here:

"Rescued full crew of Florida, thirty-two men. Chief officer Harry Manning in charge. Full coal west-erly gale. Life boat lost proceeding to New York. Full details later."

Later a brief message from Capt. Fried was received by the U. S. Lines here saying he expected to reach New York Friday morning if the weather was good and Friday afternoon if the seas were still heavy.

Capt. Fried succeeded in finding the Florida after the President Harrison of the Dollar Line and the York of the North German Line had given up the search because of low stocks of fuel oil. The York radioed that she was proceeding on her course, satisfied that the America was close to the Florida.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 24.—A Russian mate and nineteen Chinese sailors were rescued by a government cutter today after they had been exposed to the elements for two days since their vessel, the Chinese freighter Heng-Chong, foundered in heavy seas off the mouth of the Yang-Tse-Kiang River.

The captain of the vessel, a Scandinavian, and fifty Chinese sailors were drowned with the ship.

AKRON SLAYER SURRENDERS

Forced To Confess By
Cold Weather

AKRON, O., Jan. 24.—Ellsworth R. Ward, 28, walked into the sheriff's office here early today and confessed murdering Ben Johnson who was shot to death during an argument in a gambling resort here Sunday morning.

Ward escaped in his automobile after the killing, he said, and has been hiding in woods and deserted farms near here. The cold became so intense, he said, that he decided to surrender. He also said he wrecked his automobile by running into a ditch.

Johnson was shot to death when he sought to remonstrate with Ward over remarks the latter was said to have made concerning Johnson's wife.

Ward barricaded himself in a room and shot through a crack in the door when Johnson attempted to enter.

The Johnsons had been estranged periodically and Ward's remarks, it was said, concerned this and the fact that Mrs. Johnson had been married before.

Police said Ward would be charged with first degree murder.

RADICAL CHANGE IN TAX DISTRIBUTION WILL BE SUGGESTED

Governor Approves New
Uses For Gas Tax
Funds

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24.—A radical change will be made in the distribution of the gasoline tax receipts if the general assembly adopts a proposal submitted to Governor Cooper, tentatively approved by him, and to be presented to the lawmakers in a bill by Rep. Laurence H. Norton, Cleveland, within the next ten days.

Under the present law the revenue derived from one cent of the tax goes to the state for the construction of new state highways. The receipts from the other two cents are divided among the municipalities, the state and the counties. The state gets 45 per cent for highway maintenance; the municipalities divide 30 per cent on the basis of automobile registration; and 25 per cent is divided equally among the eighty-eight counties.

The proposed distribution does not affect the portion that goes to the state for new highways. It will, however, cut the municipalities out of all participation in the receipts from the other two cents, giving all of this money to the state and the counties.

The 45 per cent now received by the state would be increased to 50 per cent, the additional 5 per cent to replace the money which will be lost by the proposed abolition of assessments against abutting property, one of the reforms proposed by Governor Cooper.

The other 50 per cent would be distributed among the counties, 15 per cent being divided on the basis of their motor registration, 15 per cent on basis of road mileage, and 20 per cent to be divided equally among all eighty-eight counties.

The proposed plan of distribution was submitted to Gov. Cooper, by representative Norton, Senator Walter D. Nichols, New Philadelphia, chairman of the senate highway committee, and Rep. Dallas Sullivan, Union County house highway committee chairman.

WELLESLEY PUPIL KILLED BY TRUCK

WELLESLEY, Mass., Jan. 24.—Miss Helen H. Jones, 19, of Columbus, O., Wellesley College freshman, was almost instantly killed here last night when the bicycle which she was riding was struck by a motor truck.

Hurled onto the pavement as the truck crashed into the rear of the bicycle, the young woman received a fractured skull which resulted in her death thirty minutes after she was brought to a hospital.

Joseph Martynofsky of Framingham, driver of the truck, was held on a technical charge of manslaughter pending an investigation.

FATHER FAILS TO SAVE SON

Chief Of Fire Rescue Squad And Buddies Lose Battle With Death.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 24.—Death early today won a thirty-two-hour battle with members of fire rescue squad No. 3 for possession of eleven-month-old Tommy Sheridan, son of Lieut. John Sheridan, a member of the squad.

From Tuesday night to early this morning Lieut. Sheridan's buddies, working in shifts, administered oxygen to the suffering baby in an attempt to save his life.

Sheridan and his rescue squad were called when Tommy's breathing became difficult because of lung congestion. After a four-hour battle they had restored him to almost normal breathing.

Two hours later another call came, and a truck was sent for an additional supply of oxygen. The desperate fight began in earnest then, and for twenty-four hours oxygen was fed into the baby's lungs.

A weakened heart ended the fight, and members of the rescue squad, defeated in the fight that had meant so much to their commander, returned to the stations.

HEROIC EPISODE OF SEA WRITTEN WHEN THIRTY TWO SAVED

Is Captain's Second Rescue; Other Ships In Distress

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—A new chapter in the heroic sagas of the sea is being written today as Captain George Fried of the United States liner America ploughs his way to New York with the thirty-two members of the crew of the abandoned Italian freighter Florida, rescued in pitch darkness last night in a full gale upon the high seas 700 miles off the Virginia Capes.

The Florida itself, waterlogged, rudderless, and loaded with pine pitch from Beaumont, Tex., enroute since January 10 to Italy, is probably at the bottom of the sea. It was listing badly when the last search light from the America swept from it as the rescue vessel headed for New York.

While Capt. Fried, with his 464 passengers and rescued crew of thirty-two were hurrying on to land, the American tanker, Danedatke, reported sinking 100 miles farther off the Virginia Capes, had effected temporary repairs and was limping into port in the Bermudas under her own power.

The Florida's crew, waterlogged, rudderless, and loaded with pine pitch from Beaumont, Tex., enroute since January 10 to Italy, is probably at the bottom of the sea. It was listing badly when the last search light from the America swept from it as the rescue vessel headed for New York.

The rescue of the Florida's crew last night takes its place along side the most heroic bits of seamanship in maritime annals. A factor which enhances its dramatic value is that it occurred on the night of the third anniversary of an almost equally heroic rescue by Capt. Fried of the crew of the freighter Antiope under almost similar circumstances in the North Seas. Fried was then in charge of the United States liner President Roosevelt.

This was his radio message to the offices of the United States line here: "Rescued full crew of Florida, thirty-two men. Chief officer Harry Manning in charge. Full coast westerly. Life boat lost proceeding to New York. Full details later."

Later a brief note from Capt. Fried was received by the U. S. Lines here saying he expected to reach New York Friday morning if the weather was good and Friday afternoon if the seas were still heavy.

Capt. Fried succeeded in finding the Florida after the President Harrison of the Dollar Line and the York of the North German Line had given up the search because of low stocks of fuel oil. The York radioed that she was proceeding on her course, as did the America as she was close to the Florida.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 24.—A Russian mate and nineteen Chinese sailors were rescued by a government cutter today after they had been exposed to the elements for two days since their vessel, the Chinese freighter Heng-Chong, foundered in heavy seas off the mouth of the Yang-Tse-Kiang River.

The captain of the vessel, a Scandinavian, and fifty Chinese sailors were drowned when the ship sank.

AKRON SLAYER SURRENDERS

Forced To Confess By
Cold Weather

AKRON, O., Jan. 24.—Ellsworth R. Ward, 28, walked into the sheriff's office here early today and confessed murdering Ben Johnson, who was shot to death during an argument in a gambling resort here Sunday morning.

Ward escaped in his would-be hiding in woods and deserted farms near here. The cold became so intense, he said, that he decided to surrender. He also said he wrecked his automobile by running into a ditch.

Johnson was shot to death when he sought to remonstrate with Ward over remarks the latter was said to have made concerning Johnson's wife.

Ward barricaded himself in a room and shot through a crack in the door when Johnson attempted to enter.

The Johnsons had been estranged periodically and Ward's remarks, it was said, concerned this and the fact that Mrs. Johnson had been married before.

Police said Ward would be charged with first degree murder.

Xenia Man Highly Indorses New Medicine After It Completely Restored His Health

The steady stream of voluntary reports from former sufferers of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles or rheumatism and neuritis prove conclusively the unusual merit of this new Konjola medicine. Surprising statements are received every day at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia. One of the latest to tell about the benefits received through the use of this medicine is Mr. William Wright, Route No. 4, Xenia.

"I believe that I am doing right by telling others about the splendid merits of Konjola," said Mr. Wright. "This medicine has restored my health by banishing a severe case of stomach trouble and nervousness."

"I really hated to see night approaching because I knew that when I went to bed it would be several hours before I could get to sleep. As soon as I got in bed I would begin to roll and toss and then when I did get to sleep by the time I got up the next morning, I felt as if I had not been to bed at all. I was told this condition came from my nerves which were in terrible shape. Besides this trouble, my stomach was also very disordered. Everything I ate fermented like fire. I became terribly short of breath and the least exertion wore me out. I really had to be very careful what I ate. As this had been my condition for some time I began to think that I would never be well again and consequently I was very discouraged."

"But one day I heard about the amazing work of Konjola and so I decided to give this medicine a trial. It is a blessing that I did because right from the start, it helped me and I soon knew that I would be completely relieved of all my health troubles. Day by day my nerves became stronger and by the time I had completed the treatment I was able to sleep through the entire night. It seems to me that I fall asleep the minute my head touches the pillow and when I get up the next morning I feel greatly refreshed and full of energy. Konjola also regulated my stomach organs so that I can eat whatever is placed before me without the recurrence of a single stomach symptom. The gas bloating is ended and I never belch up that sour liquid as I formerly did. Since my stomach is in good condition my heart does not act in a peculiar manner and I am never short of breath. In every way this medicine has benefited me and I am only too glad to recommend and indorse it to others."

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 E. Main Street, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

SHARKEY READY FOR CHRISTNER FIGHT; JACK IS CONFIDENT

Akron Boy Hoping For Knockout Over Bostonian

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Trained to the best condition he has attained since he knocked out Jim Maloney almost two years ago, Jack Sharkey of Boston today rested in preparation for his 16-round heavyweight match with K. O. Christner, the former Akron, O. tire worker, in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Sharkey completed his training yesterday and planned to take only a walk and indulge in a few light exercises today. After his workout yesterday, Al Lacey, Sharkey's new trainer and former trainer of the United States Olympic boxing team, pronounced the Bostonian in perfect condition. Sharkey weighed 192, and expects to weigh within a pound of that figure tomorrow afternoon.

Satisfied with his condition, Christner did not indulge in any gymnasium work yesterday, but confined himself to roadwork and light calisthenics. He also scaled 192.

Although little betting has been reported, Sharkey has been made a 3 to 1 favorite with even money that Christner does not last ten rounds.

Christner who knocked out Knute Hansen in his fifteenth professional fight and sprung into the limelight, makes no secret of the fact that he does not know how to box, but is pinning his hopes for victory on a knockout punch.

SHARKEY READY FOR CHRISTNER FIGHT; JACK IS CONFIDENT

Akron Boy Hoping For Knockout Over Bostonian

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Trained to the best condition he has attained since he knocked out Jim Maloney almost two years ago, Jack Sharkey of Boston today rested in preparation for his 16-round heavyweight match with K. O. Christner, the former Akron, O., tire worker, in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Sharkey completed his training yesterday and planned to take only a walk and indulge in a few light exercises today. After his workout yesterday, Al Lacey, Sharkey's new trainer and former trainer of the United States Olympic boxing team, pronounced the Bostonian in perfect condition. Sharkey weighed 192, and expects to weigh within a pound of that figure tomorrow afternoon.

Satisfied with his condition, Christner did not indulge in any gymnasium work yesterday but confined himself to roadwork and light calisthenics. He also scaled 192.

Although little betting has been reported, Sharkey has been made a 3 to 1 favorite with even money that Christner does not last ten rounds.

Christner who knocked out Knute Hansen in his fifteenth professional fight and sprung into the limelight, makes no secret of the fact that he does not know how to box, but is pinning his hopes for victory on a knockout punch.

An Easy Way to Get Enough Vegetables!

OME people know all about the value of various vegetables, and the reader may know just which vegetables add the inner system most. But it's another thing to eat them in sufficient quantities. Why not get the benefit of their goodness in the pleasant form of syrup pepsin?

Were you ever told there is as much good in a spoon of plain syrup pepsin as one would get from a basketful of vegetables? Those who have learned this secret of good health don't have to pump their stomachs, or whip up their bowels with strong medicines. They seldom, if ever, have liver trouble and can usually eat anything.

Investigate syrup pepsin before you give up rich foods or go on a dull vegetable "diet." Just take a spoonful of syrup pepsin now and then—and forget everything else but your appetite at the table! If you have never made the syrup pepsin test, ten days may do surprising things for you—no matter how "fit" you may feel now. Children are helped wonderfully by this same skillful combination of laxative herbs and pure pepsin. Older people ward off auto-intoxication the same way. It is more than fifty years since Dr. Caldwell gave the world this prescription, yet today there is no druggist who hasn't it all put up and ready for you with directions.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOOD ADVICE FROM GOD—Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Amend your ways and your doings, and I will cause you to dwell in this place.—Jeremiah 7:3.

UPSETTING NOTIONS

The modern girl is all wrong in supposing she has to overcome any natural handicaps in order to compete on even terms, either physically or mentally, with her brothers.

Such is the encouraging assertion offered by Dr. George A. Dorsey, scientist and author of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," in an interview in Smart Set magazine.

Woman is man's equal in both respects, possibly his superior—and she always has been. Her past handicaps have been imposed by generations of parents who have reared their daughters in the belief that helplessness and deference to man's mental and physical qualities were proper characteristics of femininity. These are the scientist's views.

It would be just as easy, he contends, to train a generation of boys into the same characteristics. "They could be trained to like dresses, dolls and mud pies, and to believe that tears and coy looks would get them what they want in life," he asserts.

"From the time a son is born, his father makes plans for his business success and tries to develop his qualities of leadership and competitive instinct," he points out. "He may be fonder of his daughter; he is usually more indulgent toward her. But her physical and mental development is left to her mother who has been brought up conventionally with all the conventional ideas of what a girl should be. The result is that mothers have gone on for generations bringing up replicas of themselves.

"If this notion were forgotten, the father would find it just as absorbing to stimulate his daughter's interest in his business, and just as profitable, too. He would have exactly the same chance to make her a success as to make a success of his son."

Although man may lift a heavier load or run faster, there is no proof that he is woman's physical superior for practical purposes, contends Dr. Dorsey. Ancient women, he points out, did the biggest part of the real labor and even their softer sisters today prove to have greater resistance to heat, cold, disease and to fatigue through long exertion. Women may agree with Dr. Dorsey, but men never will, so he hasn't settled the question yet.

Professor Burges Johnson complains the old profanity is inadequate and no effective new cuss-words have been invented. The professor must be getting ready to run into an opened door in the dark.

NEWSPAPERMAN STUFF

One of the speeches in Jed Harris' smash hit "Front Page" which hasn't annoyed newspaper men follows. It is uttered by Hildy, the scooper-maker who plans deserting the game, but doesn't when a big story breaks: "Who wants to work on a newspaper? A lot of crummy hoboes, full of dandruff and bum grin they wheedle out of aldermen. Journalists! Peeking through keyholes fanning after fire engines like a lot of coach dogs! Waking people up in the middle of the night to ask them what they think of Mussolini. A lot of lousy, daffy buttonholes, swelling around with holes in their pants, borrowing nickels from office boys! And for what? So a million hired girls and motormen's wives'll know what's going on!"

THE WAY OF A MAN

He perished with one of the big liners many years ago. Before his death he fell madly in love with a show girl for whom he once engaged the whole wing of a Palm Beach hotel. Then one night he discovered her with his chauffeur. Before breaking off he settled a quarter of a million on her. Gave her a car, a yacht, jewels and furnished a sumptuous apartment in New York.

As the ship listed he turned to the wife that survived the wreck and implored her to always take care of the girl who crossed him. To this day the actress receives a monthly check of four figures.

FLAMING YOUTH

What is better described as a walloping hit, a first-rate musical comedy, an immense entertainment and the funniest of the stage, dance and tune shows, is Schwab & Mandel's "Follow Thru," which romps all over the Chanin 64th Street theatre platform, where it probably will out-run its predecessor, "Good News."

It is crowded with at least five song hits, albeit all of the numbers are difficult to forget; two comedians who discharge an incessant barrage of the most hilarious comedy current in the theatre belt; and it can boast of an array of contagious-looking girls. It is a grand show.

DeSylva, Brown and Henderson, who never have been associated with a failure in their career, furnished the Grade A score with Mr. DeSylva and Laurence Schwab providing the highly amusing book. Bobby Connolly arranged the fascinating steering arrangements.

OF ALL THINGS!

Perhaps you recall the one about the sound movie picture magnate who argued that he couldn't hear the final "k" in dogs! Well, that was pants-prosser type of film executive. The other day in Hollywood, however, when Mary Pickford took her first sound test, she was interrupted by a dialectician, who said: "Poddon me, Miss Pickford, but from over here we ken't hear the 't' in often."

OF ALL DOPES!

From Jim Quirk's Photoplay one learns that at a dinner in Hollywood some one placed Charles Chaplin next to Mr. J. T. Collins of an Australian paper who was visiting with other John Bull journalists. When the flashlight picture was taken, the man turned to the great comedian and chirped: "I say, old fellow, would you mind telling me your name?"

Charles looked a bit startled, but finally confessed that he was Charles Chaplin. "Ah," exclaimed the astounded Australian, "I thought you were a mustache!"

"A great man is made up of qualities that meet or make great occasions."—Lowell.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

The Best Things
Was it not Dr. Henry Van Dyke who wrote these lines: "These are the things I prize And hold of dearest worth; Light of the sapphire skies, Peace of the silent hills, Shelter of forests, comfort of the grass, Music of birds, murmur of little rills, Shadow of clouds that swiftly pass, And, after showers, The smell of flowers. And the good brown earth— And best of all, along the way, Friendship and mirth."

This is a great verse by which to check up our real interests. If we really care for the things so beautifully presented in the lines above we are getting something fine and sweet out of life.

Hobbies

Nobody denies that a hobby is a healthful thing. To turn from the daily job to a hobby brings the rest that comes from change and a new kind of mental exercise. One thing every hobbyist ought to do as well as he can. He ought to keep his hobby to himself or reserve the exploitation of it to those who are seized with the same idea.

Losing Oneself

There is a certain verse in a well-known book which deals with the subject of "losing oneself." To many people that verse has probably been obscure and perplexing. How can one find oneself only by losing oneself? And yet it is both simple and true. If you give everything you have to the most important task in hand you find the greatest contentment and peace of mind you will ever get in this world. You will find yourself at your best.

When we get so interested in something or other that we forget our little personal comforts, when we become so interested in the welfare of someone else that we do not notice the pain of effort and sacrifice, we have really achieved happiness. We have lost ourselves. The greatest gain comes through losing ourselves.

Census Enumeration Proposed for Unemployment Data
By EISENBERG STEWART
Federal Statistician
(Eisenberg Stewart was born at Chicago, Ill., April 22, 1857. He was educated in the public and high schools of Illinois. He became affiliated with the United States bureau of labor in 1887 after having been editor of several newspapers. He has been United States commissioner of labor statistics since 1920.)

I have urged the necessity for a census of the employed and unemployed as a fundamental basis from which to begin the solution of the problems thereby presented.

With a census of unemployment, the bureau could apply the index of the volume of unemployment and ascertain the number of unemployed at any given time. With the information now at hand, all the bureau of labor statistics can do is estimate shrinkage in employment in established industries.

On January 1, 1929, 79,000 more people were employed in those established industries than on January 1, 1928, a reduction shrinkage of 4.2 per cent. An unemployed person, usually employed, at present out of work and seeking a job. This definition, cuts out the unemployed who present sociological problem and for whom industry is not immediately responsible at that time.

That the question is local or for the states does not appeal to me. Unemployment is a world problem.

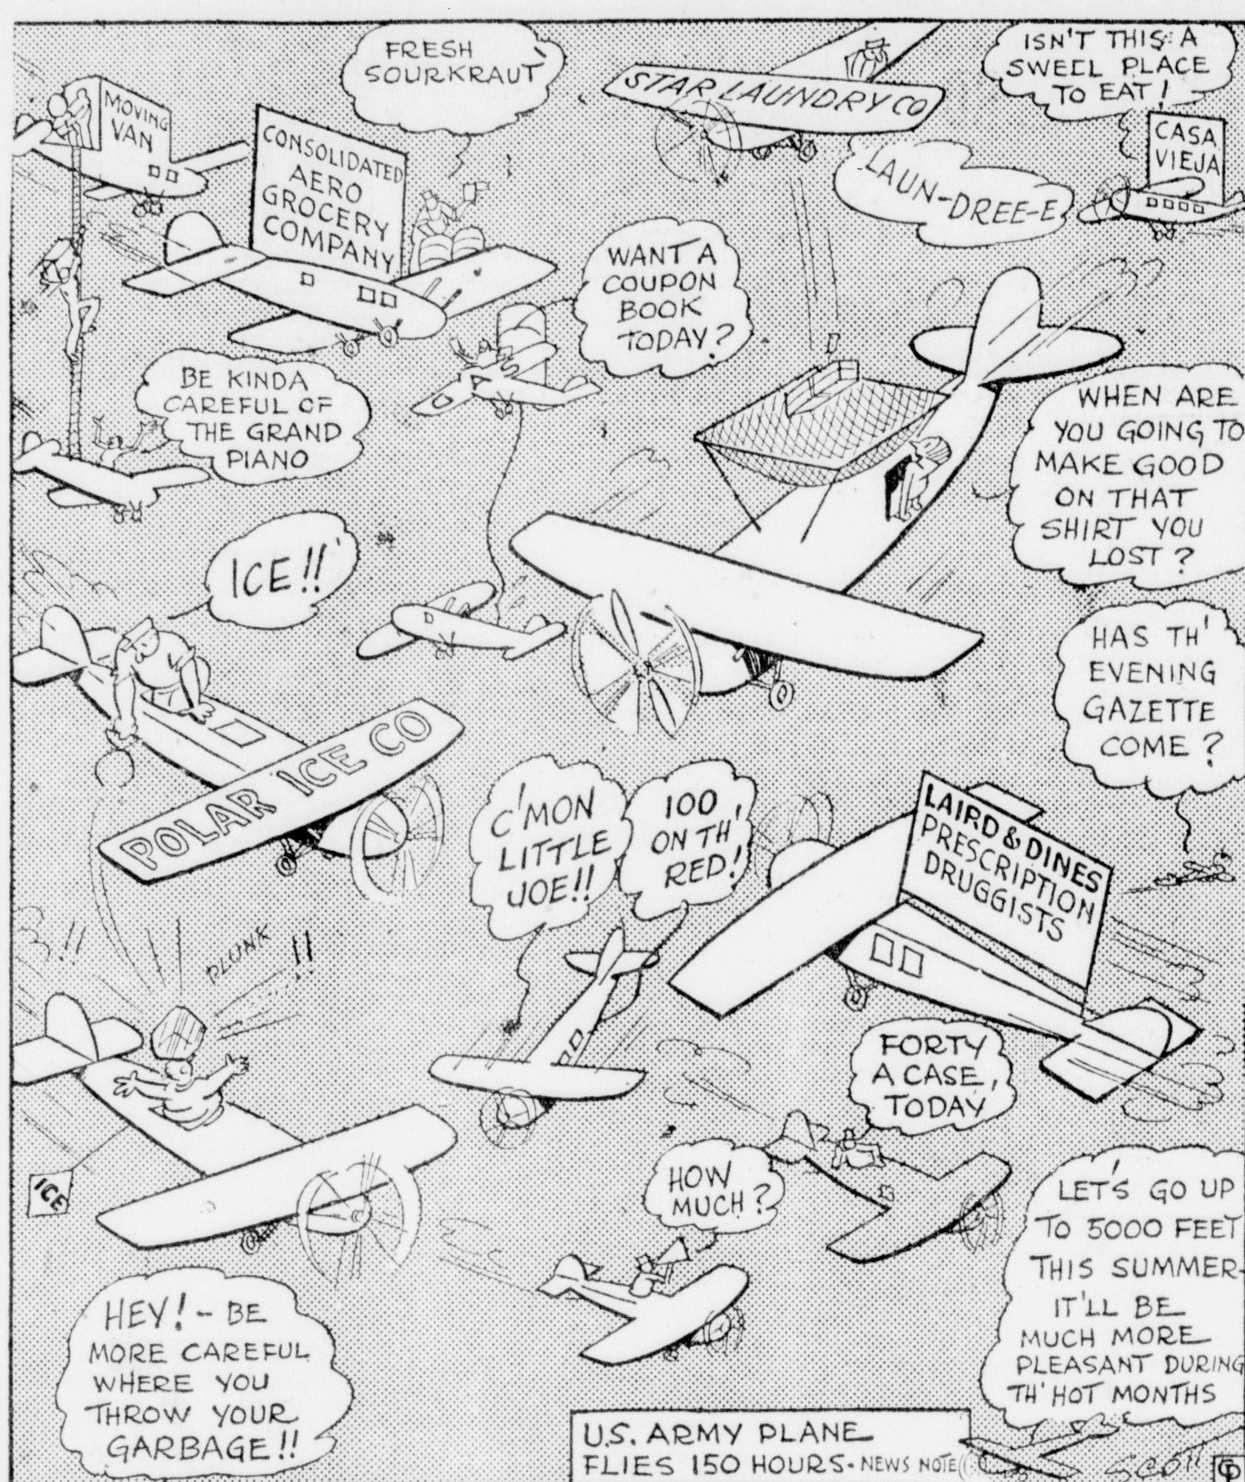

Avenue A in New York City, one-half mile from Fifth Avenue, is the most densely populated district in the world, including India and China, with 500,000 persons to the square mile. While this condition may present a problem for New York alone, at least it is for the federal government to provide the basic information from which to make a start. Consider the analogy between the situation in New York City and a cancer on the lip of a man which will destroy the man if he leaves it for the lip to take care of.

While the causes for unemployment might be local, the absorption of that unemployment was national. Take the case of a copper company which increased production of copper per man from 610 pounds to 2,095 pounds, hence reducing employment from over 800 to less than 200. At the same time the output was increased from 9,000,000 to 15,318,000 pounds per month.

Who absorbed the men? Only a census can aid us in determining what has become of them.

"In jealousy there is more self-love than love."—La Rochefoucauld.

THE FUTURE

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—For the average petty politician's tinhorn imagination any concept of a United States of all the Americas is about a million sizes too big to grasp.

I proved it recently by experiment. The idea is no invention of mine. Latin-Americans discuss it a good deal, but it was new to the congressman I tried it on, thinking it might especially interest him, as a foreign relations committee member.

"I don't believe it would make a hit in my district," was all he said. Not a minute's consideration of it on its merits! He simply couldn't see any votes in it for himself. I'm sure he was wrong, at that.

However, it isn't likely such a hint would bounce off President-elect Hoover as if he were cased in armor plate, and it must have been fired at him pretty frequently on his southern tour.

Every pro-"Yanqui" economist south of the Rio Grand has the notion in the back of his head, rather hopelessly, but as a thing to be suggested whenever there seems to be the least chance that it will do any good. Few of them can have missed an opportunity like Mr. Hoover's visit.

A customs union including every New World republic—that's the Latin-American statesman's dream. A knocking down of all tariff barriers from the Canadian border to Cape Horn!

Everybody knows how absolute freedom of commerce does bind states together, so it is easy to foresee how a compact of this sort would knit the Americas securely enough to hold them against all outside efforts to rip them apart and yet with sufficient independence of individual action to prevent friction among themselves.

Let us start at the first point, the chin line. From 25 on, the muscles of your chin and throat have a tendency towards relaxation. It is impossible to prevent this, but it is not by any means impossible to control it. In fact, one of the first suggestions I make to every young woman coming to me for advice is that she face the indisputable fact that she must take definite steps to preserve a firm chin and taut muscles of the throat and neck. The angular type, on the other hand, is almost always representative of an undernourished condition, and to fill out these outlines you require definite and scientific care to restore the lines of healthful plumpness and the outline of gracious curves.

Then, angular sunken outlines seldom frame beauty. Usually a rather concentrated treatment will achieve good effects in a comparatively short time. If you never go to bed at night without having first applied a generous amount of nourishing cream, you will soon find that your persistent efforts have modified the un-beautiful outlines of your face. Anti-wrinkle creams are created especially for you and your type. Use them and you will find that beauty may be obtained even when nature has been less generous than she might be in apportioning the lines which constitute the outline frame of your face.

Remember that the lines of your face are significant of your type, and that in maintaining them you are preserving the beauty-personality you were meant to have. Determining early in youth to make the best of what you have. Forget your personal and secret admiration for beauty that you can never have, and turn your attention towards developing the best possibilities that are within you.

But what of it?—they urge. Considerable readjustment would be worth while, in their judgment to accomplish what they insist would be so desirable an end.

Of course, Latin-American trade would tumble bodily into Yanqui hands.

All Latin-American fears of Yanqui imperialism would vanish—for what further purpose could it have! And yet the basis of the union would be enormously to Latin-American advantage.

Southern proponents of the scheme paint a lovely picture of it as they are confident it would look, realized.

They surely painted it for Mr. Hoover.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

By MADAME RUBINSTEIN
The general outline of your face is an important part of your beauty ensemble. Unfortunately, we cannot dictate exactly the type we shall portray, and on the other hand, fortunately, there is a sufficient variety of lovely faces that are representative of all the types that I am describing below. The important thing for you to consider, when it comes to considering the frame lines of your face, is to what extent you have maintained the clarity of the original lines.

Let us start at the first point, the chin line. From 25 on, the muscles of your chin and throat have a tendency towards relaxation. Household Hints

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT
Lamb Chops, Baked Potatoes, Cabbage, Apple, Carrot Salad, Creamed Cauliflower, Banana Layer Cake.
The children will cheer when they see the cake for dessert. Children generally love bananas, and when they are ripe they are an excellent food for them as well as the grown-ups. You can have a couple of guests for this meal, if you see that there are plenty of chops.

Today's Recins
Cabbage, Apple, Carrot Salad—Use one part apple and carrot to two of cabbage, and mix with your favorite dressing. A bit of celery or celery salt may be added if liked. The carrot may be grated or cut fine, just as you choose, and the apples and cabbage should be chopped.

Banana Layer Cake—Put half a cup of butter in a bowl, cream until soft; gradually add a cup of sugar, and continue beating. Add to this mixture two scant cups of flour, three teaspoons baking powder, sifted together, and, lastly, a half teaspoon vanilla. Then fold in the whites of four eggs, stiffly beaten. Bake in shallow pans, and put between the layers an uncooked cream frosting covered with thin slices of bananas. Frost the top in the same way.

Suggestion
When Water Is Hard
One-half cupful each of borax and pure starch added to the bath water will soften the water and make the skin soft and smooth. Use a stiff-bristled bath brush for keeping the body well after the bath, dry the body clean, and rub a little alcohol over the thighs and upper arms to prevent roughness recurring.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Answers to Mothers
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.—Jewish proverb.
Thumb Sucking
"What will stop thumb sucking in a child of three and a half years? We have tried a number of preventives, but have been unsuccessful."
MRS. R.

The only thing that will stop a child of three and a half years, or younger, from sucking his thumb or fingers, is to put either a splint or some other contrivance on his arms which prevents him from getting his hand to his mouth. A splint can be made of heavy card-board rolled around and covered with a wide bandage, and pinned securely in his sleeve. The success of the treatment depends upon the splint's being kept on day and night for perhaps many days until the child forgets, and the pathways worn in the brain tissue from the habit are obliterated from non-use.

It is very necessary to break a child of thumb or finger sucking, for he not only will deform his mouth and nose. This will block the passages and favor the growth of adenoids, and the results will show themselves in the general health as well as in the facial and hand deformity.

We have a list of modern books on the general care and feeding of children which you may have.

"I have a little girl of two years who, though she was raised on the bottle, has steadfastly refused to drink milk since the bottle was taken away from her. Before I took the bottle from her I tried, without success, to get her to drink milk from a cup. She eats plenty of other foods: carrots, peas, spinach, etc., and an abundance of cereals of all kinds, and both cooked and fresh fruits; yet her father feels that milk is absolutely necessary for children. She weighs 36 pounds and is 35 inches tall and has good health. I use all the milk I can in preparing food for her. Is extra milk necessary?"

MRS. B.

The extra milk is not necessary if she gets the equivalent of three glasses of milk in her custards, soups, desserts, etc. However, it is better for her to get some plain milk. Buy some dishes especially for her—a pretty pitcher and a cup and saucer.

Do you drink milk yourself? Adults should have two glasses of it a day, so you and father have a glassful before her. Children are great imitators.

Soothsayer Veils

"What, if anything, does it indicate if a child is born with a so-called veil on its face?" MRS. L.
It does not indicate anything. Mrs. L., except that the protective sac over the child was not ruptured before birth. This is usually happens. It used to be believed that a child born with a veil was going to be a soothsayer of some sort with great occult powers, but this is nothing but a superstition, just as soothsaying is.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Don't be too good, girls. If you would be popular with your fellows. If you are too virtuous, especially in your own estimation, it is apt to get on the nerves of your acquaintances, and instead of admiring and loving you they will try to pick flaws in you. No matter how good you may be you probably have a few faults. Better remember this and not walk with your head too high. That attitude is apt to cause you to trip and "faw down and go boom," as the popular song says.

"DEAR MRS. LEE: I am a girl of 18. I go with the best society and seem to be very much liked by everyone in town. I dress nicely. Please do not think me egotistical when I say I am rather pretty. I play tennis, swim, dance and play the violin in school and church orchestras and I belong to the high school rice club. I do not smoke or drink or curse. The girls that I chum with go with boys and have numerous boy friends, but unfortunately I have none. Can you tell me the reason for this? How can I have sweethearts and boy friends like the rest of the girls?"
"A READER."

All the things you do are very commendable, my dear, but I judge from your letter that you are a bit too conscious of your own merits. If you will try to forget about yourself, your books, your talents and virtues, and try to see those of others and are interested in them, I am sure you will have many boy friends as well as girls. You are only a little girl now, and so have a fine chance to change your attitude and grow up to be a charming young lady. There are very few people, indeed, who do not make mistakes, some of them, like your father, very serious ones, but we must not judge them, and we must love them. Very often they are more admirable than we ourselves, if we could but see ourselves as others see us.

WORRIED: I am afraid the young man did not really love you, and if his silence continues, you have proof enough that he has forgotten you.

SADNESS: Girls usually begin to go out with the boys at your age or a little older. It is all right if their parents think so. Some girls are a boy crazy at young as 13. Don't you go to school and meet girls there, or at church, or Sunday school? If not, isn't there a Young Women's Christian Association in your town that you could join? They have a nice class of girls and clubs of all kinds.

"MY DEAR MRS. LEE: I am 16 years old and am in love with a man about 37. He has been married and has three children. I just adore them. I know he cares for me, but we don't speak about it to my folks, because he says he is too old and has told me maybe I'll find some one else more my age. His wife has been dead about six months. Shall I keep on associating with him or look for some one else?"
A faithful reader.

"BOBBIE"

Your friend is wise, Bobbie. Even though you may attract him strongly, he knows that no happiness could come from such a union. He needs a woman to be a companion to him and mother his children, and you need a boy friend nearer your own age. You can be good friends, but not lovers.

SORRY R: I trust you have done what I should have advised before if I had had room for your answer, written or called your friend up and said you were in the wrong and wanted to make up

Peter's Adventures

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

EVERY KICK A BOOST

"Cluck," cried one of the older turkeys, and at this signal the oldest and fattest turkeys rose into the air and took flight for the opposite shore.

"Cluck," cried the leader of the younger turkeys, and then they, too, took to their wings, but as the boy watched he saw one after another drop into the water.

"Oh, they will be drowned," cried he. Gobbler chuckled.

"Not they, my boy. Every one of them will reach the other side in safety."

And they did. Bringing their wings close to their bodies and spreading out their legs, as hard as they could, and so that they had reached the other bank and clambered up to dry land.

Now it was time for a second group of the turkeys to cross the stream and it was to this group that the barnyard Gobbler had added himself.

But when they reached the water's edge they seemed in no hurry to go a bit further. Up and down the bank they strutted, stretching their long necks over the water and twenty times Peter was sure they were going to make a start and twenty times he was disappointed.

Gobbler was just as silly as his friends of the Wilds. First he would cock his head upon one side and take a long look back at the water. Then jerk! jerk! Up and down would he bob his head many times and so fast that Peter thought he must have lost his senses.

Just as he began to fear Gobbler was never going to stop bobbing, the fellow would cock his head upon the other side and stare again at the waves, and once more his head bobbed up and down as if it had been fastened on to a string that some one was pulling.

All the while that he was acting so queerly, Gobbler kept muttering to himself, and the boy, bending down to listen, discovered that he was saying in an undecided voice:

"I think I'll cross. I don't believe I will! I must follow the others! What if I should stay right here! I think I'll fly! I believe I'll kick! I think I'll go over right now!"

But the silly Gobbler didn't make a move. Noticing that all the other turkeys on his side of the stream were acting in the same manner as last the boy's curiosity got the better of him. He could stand it no longer. He poked Gobbler in the ribs and with no gentle finger.

"Because," explained the proprietor, "we never permit a woman to come in."

NEWSPAPERMAN STUFF

One of the speeches in Jed Harris' smash hit "Front Page" which hasn't annoyed newspaper men follows. It is uttered by Hilly, the scoop-hunter who plans deserting the game, but doesn't want a big story break: "Who wants to work on a newspaper? A lot of crummy hooey, full of dandruff and humbug they wheedle out of aidersmen. Journalists! Peeking through keyholes running after fire engines like a lot of coach dogs! Waking people up in the middle of the night to ask them what they think of Mussolini. A lot of lousy, daffy buttinskis, swelling around with holes in their pants, borrowing nickels from office boys! And for what? So a million hired girls and motormen's wives'll know what's going on?"

THE WAY OF A MAN

He perished with one of the big liners many years ago. Before his death he fell madly in love with a show girl for whom he once engaged the whole wing of a Palm Beach hotel. Then one night he discovered her with his chauffeur. Before breaking off he settled a quarter of a million on her. Gave her a car, a yacht, jewels and furnished a sumptuous apartment in New York. As the ship listed he turned to the wife that survived the wreck and implored her to always take care of the girl who crossed him. To this day the actress receives a monthly check of four figures.

FLAMING YOUTH

What is better described as a wallowing hit, an immense entertainment and the funniest of the song, dance and tune shows, is Schwab & Randall's "Follow Thru," which rambles all over the Chanin 64th Street theatre platform, where it probably will out-run its predecessor, "Good News."

It is crowded with at least five song hits albeit all of the numbers here are difficult to forget; two comedians who discharge an incessant barrage of the most hilarious comedy current in the theatre belt; and it can boast of an array of contagious-looking girls. It is a grand show, says DeSylvia, Brown and Henderson, who never have been associated with a failure in their career, furnished the Grade A score with Mr. DeSylvia and Laurence Schwab providing the highly amusing book. Bobbie Conolly arranged the fascinating stepping arrangements.

OF ALL THINGS!

Perhaps you recall the one about the sound movie picture magazine who argued that he couldn't hear the final "k" in swimming. Well, that was pants-presser type of film executive. The other day in Hollywood, however, when Mary Pickford took her first sound test, she was interrupted by a dialectician, who said: "Poddon me, Miss Pickford, but from over here we can't hear the 't' in often."

OF ALL DOPES!

From Jim Quirk's Photoplay one learns that at a dinner in Hollywood some one placed a Charlie Chaplin next to a Mr. J. T. Collins of an Australian paper who was visiting with other John Bull journalists. When the flash-light picture was taken, the man turned to the great comedian and chirped: "I say, old fellow, would you mind telling me your name?"

Charlie looked a bit startled, but finally confessed that he was Charlie Chaplin. "Ah!" exclaimed the astounded Australian, "I thought you were a mustache!"

The Best Things
Was it not Dr. Henry Van Dyke who wrote these lines: "These are the things I prize And hold of dearest worth: Light of the sapphire skies, Peace of the silent hills, Shelter of forests, comfort of the grass, Music of birds, murmur of little rills, Shadow of clouds that swiftly pass, And, after showers, The smell of flowers. And the good brown earth— And best of all, along the way, Friendship and mirth."

Hobbies
Nobody denies that a hobby is a healthful thing. To turn from the daily job to a hobby brings the rest that comes from change and a new kind of mental exercise. One thing every hobbyist ought to do as well as he can. He ought to keep his hobby to himself or reserve the exploitation of it to those who are seized with the same idea.

Census Enumeration Proposed for Unemployment Data
By ETHELBERG STEWART
Federal Statistician
(Ethelberg Stewart was born at Chicago, Ill., April 22, 1857. He was educated in the public and high schools of Illinois. He became affiliated with the United States bureau of labor in 1887 after having been editor for several newspapers. He has been United States commissioner of labor statistics since 1920.)

I have urged the necessity for a census of the employed and unemployed as a fundamental basis from which to begin the solution of the problems thereby presented. With the census of unemployment, the bureau could apply the index of the volume of unemployment and ascertain the number of unemployed at any given time. With the information now at hand, all the bureau of labor statistics can do is estimate shrinkage in employment in established industries.

On January 1, 1929, 79,000 more people were employed in these established industries than on January 1, 1928, a reduction shrinkage of 4.2 per cent. An unemployed person, usually employed, at present out of work and seeking a job. This definition cuts out the unemployed who present sociological problem and for whom industry is not immediately responsible at that time.

That the question is local or for the states does not appeal to me. Unemployment is a world problem.

The census in New York City, one-half mile from Fifth Avenue, is the most densely populated district in the world, including India and China, with 500,000 persons to the square mile.

While this condition may present a problem for New York alone, at least it is for the federal government to provide the basis of information from which to make a start. Consider the analogy between the situation in New York City and a cancer on the lip of a man which will destroy the man if he leaves it for the lip to take care of.

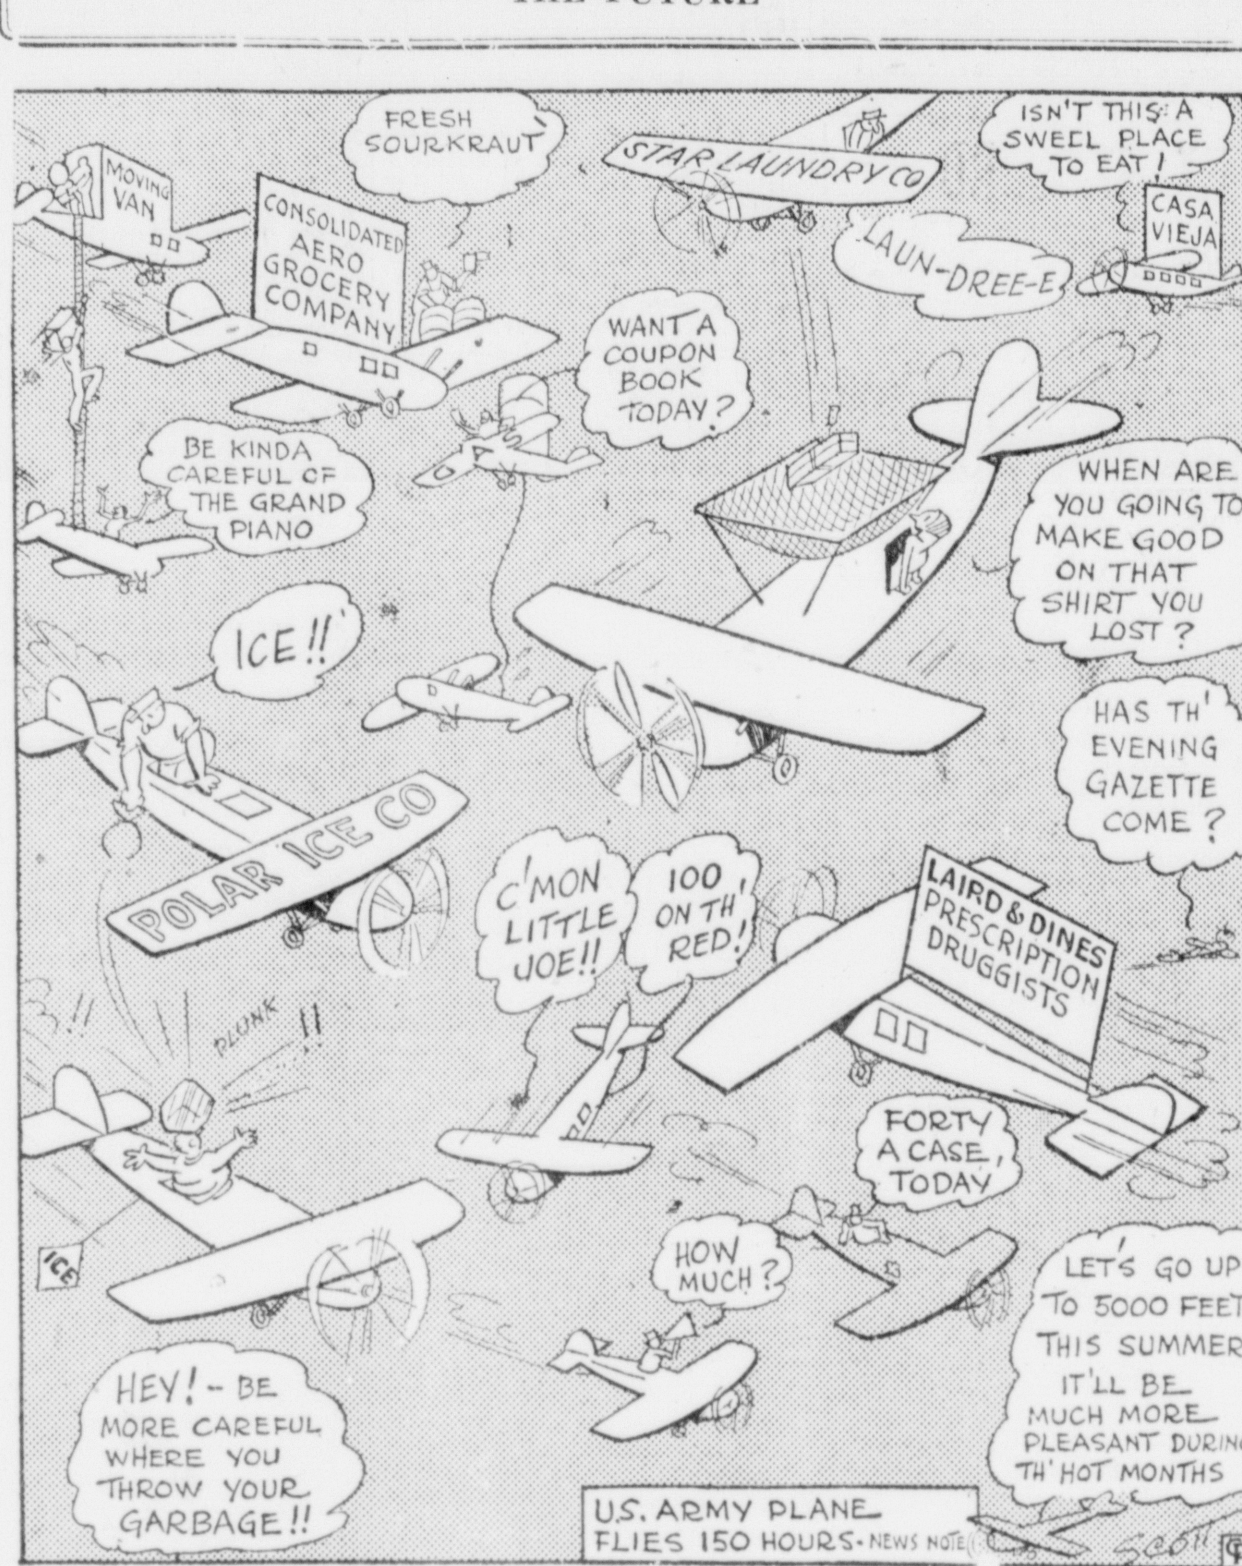

While the causes for unemployment might be local, the unemployment of that unemployment was national. Take the case of a copper company which increased production of copper per man from 610 pounds to 2,005 pounds, hence reducing employment from over 800 to less than 200. At the same time the output was increased from 9,000,000 to 15,218,000 pounds per month.

Who absorbed the men? Only a census can aid us in determining what has become of them.

THE FUTURE

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—For the average petty politician's tinhorn imagination any concept of a United States of all the Americas is about a million sizes too big to grasp.

I proved it recently by experiment. The idea is no invention of mine. Latin-Americans discuss it a good deal, but it was new to the congressman I tried it on, thinking it might especially interest him, as a foreign relations committee member.

"I don't believe it would make a hit in my district," was all he said. Not a minute's consideration of it on its merits! He simply couldn't see any votes in it for himself. I'm sure he was wrong, at that.

However, it isn't likely such a hint would bounce off President-elect Hoover as if he were cased in armor plate, and it must have been fired at him pretty frequently on his southern tour.

Every pro-"Yanqui" economist south of the Rio Grand has the notion in the back of his head, rather hopelessly, but as a thing to be suggested whenever there seems to be the least chance that it will do any good. Few of them can have missed an opportunity like Mr. Hoover's visit.

A customs union including every New World republic—that's the Latin-American statesman's dream. A knocking down of all tariff barriers from the Canadian border to Cape Horn!

Everybody knows how absolute freedom of commerce does bind states together, so it is easy to foresee how a compact of this sort would knit the Americas—securely enough to hold them against all outside efforts to rip them apart and yet with sufficient independence of individual action to prevent friction among themselves.

Le us start at the first point, the chin line. From 25 on, the muscles of your chin and throat have a tendency towards relaxation. It is impossible to prevent this, but it is not by any means impossible to control it. In fact, one of the first suggestions I make to every young woman coming to me for advice is that she face the indisputable fact that that she must take definite steps to preserve a firm chin and taut muscles of the throat and neck. Let us say that you are in your early twenties and here is already a distinct suspicion of relaxation visible around the lower outline of your face. Your immediate care must be preventative. Nightly patting with the back of your hand, patting smartly from the merely be the first sign to guard against this and not with your head too high. That attitude is apt to cause you to trip and "faw down and go boom," as the popular song says.

Then, angular sunken outlines seldom frame beauty. Usually a rather concentrated treatment will achieve good effects in a comparatively short time. If you never go to bed at night without having first applied a generous amount of nourishing cream, you will soon find that your persistent efforts have modified the unattractive outlines of your face.

Remember that the lines of your face are significant of your type, and that in maintaining them you are preserving the beauty-personality you were meant to have. Determine early in youth to make the best of what you have. Forget your personal and secret admiration for beauty that you can never have, and turn your attention towards developing the best possibilities that are within you.

Of course, Latin-American trade would tumble bodily into Yanqui hands.

All Latin-American fears of Yanqui imperialism would vanish if the United States would be so generous to Latin-American advantage, too.

Southern proponents of the scheme paint a lovely picture of it as they are confident it would look, realized.

They surely painted it for Mr. Hoover.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MINE, HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Run under your ear around under the chin and up to the other ear, using a good contour jelly, will prevent further inroads of the bête noire of beauty—the double chin.

Should your chin be definitely relaxed, your treatment must be corrective. It is better to use a strong preparation, probably, a balsamic muscle astringent, and instead of patting for five minutes, increase the time to 10, and do it both night and morning. If the chin is heavy and definitely relaxed, you must realize that you are not going to obtain marked immediate results. If, after three months of consistent, regular treatment, you have succeeded in restoring your chin to its normal outline, you are doing well.

There are typical facial outlines. One is the oval, and this is generally considered to be the popular ideal of beauty. Another is the rather plump, heart-shaped face with a pointed chin, slightly high cheek bones, and probably a broad and well-shaped forehead. The next is the round face, and last we have the angular, and none too attractive outline.

The two first I have mentioned need no more than playing up to. The third, or round face, if it is clearly cut as to outline, must

Cabbage, Apple, Carrot Salad

Banana Layer Cake Coffee
The children will cheer when they see the cake for dessert. Children generally love bananas, and when they are ripe they are an excellent food for them as well as the grown-ups. You can have a couple of guests for this meal, if you see that there are plenty of chops.

Today's Recipes

Cabbage, Apple, Carrot Salad—Use one part apple and carrot to two of cabbage, and mix with your favorite dressing. A bit of celery or celery salt may be added if liked. The carrot may be grated or cut fine, just as you choose, and the apples and cabbage should be chopped.

Banana Layer Cake—Put half a cup of butter in a bowl, cream until soft; gradually add a cup of sugar, and continue beating. Add to this mixture two scant cups of flour, three teaspoons baking powder, sifted together, alternately with a half cup of milk and, lastly, a half teaspoon vanilla. Then fold in the whites of four eggs, stiffly beaten. Bake in shallow pans, and put between the layers an uncooked cream frosting covered with thin slices of banana. Frost the top in the same way.

Suggestion

When Water Is Hard—One-half cupful each of borax and pure starch added to the bath water will soften the water and make the skin soft and smooth. Use a stiff-bristled bath brush for keeping the body clean. After the bath, dry the body well and rub a little alcohol over the thighs and upper arms to prevent roughness recurring.

Answers to Mothers
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers. — Jewish Proverb.

Thumb Sucking
"What will that thumb sucking in a child of three and a half years? We have tried a number of preventives, but have been unsuccessful. — MRS. R."

The only thing that will stop a child of three and a half years, or younger, from sucking his thumb or fingers, is to put either a splint or some other contrivance on his arms which prevents him from getting his hands to his mouth. A splint can be made of heavy cardboard rolled around and covered with a wide bandage, and pinned securely in his sleeve. The success of the treatment depends on day and night for perhaps many days until the child forgets, and the pathway worn in the brain tissue from the habit is obliterated from non-use.

It is very necessary to break a child of thumb or finger sucking, for he not only will deform his hand, but he will deform his mouth and nose. This will block the passages and favor the growth of adenoids, and the results will show themselves in the general health as well as in the facial and hand deformity.

We have a list of modern books on the general care and feeling of children which you may have.

I have a little girl of two years who, though she was raised on the bottle, has steadfastly refused to drink milk since the bottle was taken away from her. Before I took the bottle from her I tried, without success, to get her to drink milk from a cup. She eats plenty of other foods: carrots, peas, spinach, etc., and an abundance of cereals of all kinds, and both cooked and fresh fruits, yet her father feels that milk is absolutely necessary for children. She weighs 36 pounds and is 35 inches tall and has good health. I use all the milk I can in preparing food for her. Is extra milk necessary? — MRS. B."

Soothsayer Veils

"What, if anything, does it indicate if a child is born with a so-called veil on its face? MRS. L. It does not indicate anything. Mrs. L. except that the protective sac over the child was not ruptured before birth. This occasionally happens. It used to be believed that a child born with a veil was going to be a soothsayer of some sort with great occult powers, but this is nothing but a superstition, just as soothsaying is."

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Don't be too good, girls. If you would be popular with your fellows, if you are too virtuous, especially in your own estimation, it is apt to get on the nerves of your acquaintances, and instead of admiring and loving you they will try to pick flaws in you. No matter how good you may be, you probably have a few faults.

Better be a girl who is not perfect than a girl who is. That attitude is apt to cause you to trip and "faw down and go boom," as the popular song says.

"DEAR MRS. LEE: I am a girl of 16. I go with the best society and seem to be very much liked by everyone in town. I dress nicely. Please do not think me egotistical when I say I am rather pretty. I play tennis, swim, dance and play the violin in school and church orchestras and I belong to the high school glee club. I do not smoke or drink or curse. The girls that I chum with go with boys and have numerous boy friends, but unfortunately I have none. Can you tell me the reason for this? How can I have sweethearts and boy friends like the rest of the girls?"

"A READER."
All the things you do are very commendable, my dear, but I judge from your letter that you are a bit too conscious of your own merits. If you will try to forget about yourself, your books, your talents and virtues, and try to see those of others and are interested in them, I am sure you will have many boy friends as well as girls. You are only a little girl now, and so have a fine chance to change your attitude and grow up to be a charming young lady. There are very few people, indeed, who do not make mistakes, some of them, like your father, very serious ones, but we must not judge them, and we must love them. Very often they are more admirable than we ourselves. If we could but see ourselves as others see us.

WORRIED: I am afraid the young man did not really love you, and if his silence continues, you have proof enough that he has forgotten you.

FADNESS: Girls usually begin to go out with the boys at your age or a little older. It is all right if their parents think so. Some girls are boy crazy at young as 13. Don't you go to school and meet girls there, or at church, or Sunday school? If no isn't there a Young Women's Christian Association in your town that you could join? They have or nice class of girls and clubs of all kinds.

"MY DEAR MRS. LEE: I am 16 years old and am in love with a man about 37. He has been married and has three children. I just adore them. I know he cares for me, but we don't speak about it to my folks, because he says he is too old and has told me maybe I'll find some one else more my age. His wife has been dead about six months. Shall I keep on associating with him or look for some one else? A faithful reader. "BOBBIE"

Your friend is wise, Bobbie. Even though you may attract him, happiness could come from such a union. He needs a woman to be a companion to him and mother his children, and you need a boy friend nearer your own age. You can be good friends, but not lovers.

SORRY R: I trust you have done what I should have advised before if I had had called for your answer, written or room for your friend up and said you were in the wrong and wanted to make up

EVERY KICK A BOOST

"Click," said the old Turkey, and at this signal the oldest and fattest Turkey rose into the air and took flight for the opposite shore.

"Click," cried the leader of the younger Turkeys, and then they, too, took to their wings, but as the boy watched he saw one after another drop into the water.

"Oh, they will be drowned," cried he, Gobbler chuckle.

"Not they, my boy. Every one of them will reach the other side in safety."

And they did. Bringing their wings close to their bodies and spreading out their tails like paddles, they kicked their legs as hard as they could, and so they had reached the other bank and clambered up to dry land.

Now it was time for a second group of the Turkeys to cross the stream and it was to this group that the barnyard Gobbler had added himself.

But when these reached the water's edge they seemed in no hurry to go a bit further. Up and down the bank they strutted, stretching their long necks over the water and twenty times Peter was sure they were going to make a start and twenty times he was disappointed.

Gobbler was just as silly as his friends of the Wilds. First he would cock his head upon one side and take a long, long look at the water. Then jerk! Jerk! Jerk! Up and down would he bob his head many times and so fast that Peter thought he must have lost his senses.

Just as he began to fear Gobbler was never going to step Gobbler, the fellow would cock his head upon the other side and stare again at the waves, and once more his head bobbed up and down as if it had been fastened on to a string that someone was pulling.

All the while that he was acting so queerly, Gobbler kept muttering to himself, and the boy, bending down to listen, discovered the stream were acting in the same manner as last the boys curiously got the better of him. He could stand it no longer. He poked Gobbler in the ribs and with no gentle finger.

SPORT SHOTS

FRAMED BY PHIL
Although all six league teams will be in action Friday night, no change in the standing of the Miami Valley League are anticipated.

The league basketball campaign, now two weeks old, has so far been free from what may be termed upsets. There is only one prospect for a surprise Friday. Troy, although it is perhaps saying too much, might accidentally throw a monkey wrench into the machinery and defeat Sidney. Xenia and Piqua, however, should continue to share the league leadership by polishing off Miamisburg and Greenville, respectively, with the utmost ease.

As far as the Buccaneers are concerned, the league champions are not counting their chickens before they are hatched and are preparing for anything the Burgers have to offer and to give more in return.

The championship campaign enters the goldrums this week. Only the Troy-Sidney game stands out among the others.

"Matinee basketball" will be given a trial at Columbus Saturday afternoon between Chicago and Ohio State. This will be an innovation in Western Conference basketball and other Big Ten teams may try the experiment if it is in any way successful.

The change in time was first suggested by Billy Ireland of the Columbus Dispatch in last Sunday's "Passing Show." The suggestion met with widespread approval due to the trials and tribulations of night parking at the state fair grounds.

It is said that if the attendance at Saturday's game comes up to expectations, all of the remaining home games on Ohio State's schedule this season may be played in the afternoon instead of at night.

CEDARVILLE YELLOW JACKETS DEFEATED BY FINDLAY 42-34

Findlay College, leader in the Northwest Ohio Conference basketball race, registered its fourth straight victory in a non-conference game with the Cedarville College "Yellow Jackets," by a margin of 42 to 34 at Findlay Wednesday night.

Cedarville managed to knot the score at thirty-three points in the third quarter but could add only one more point to its total in the last ten minutes of play.

Cloyce Taylor, Findlay center, was the leading point-getter of the contest with six field goals and two free throws for fourteen points. The defeat was the ninth of the season in eleven starts for Cedarville. The "Yellow Jackets" will meet Wilberforce University on the latter's floor Saturday night.

THE LIFE OF TEX RICKARD

Being A Colorful Account Of One Of America's Most Colorful Characters

CHAPTER XII
By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
Copyright, 1929, by United Press

Crowds, not individuals, were the only ones who ever really knew Tex Rickard. He had countless friends, but few, if any of them, ever penetrated his calm, unruffled front.

No sport, except golf, ever interested Rickard. He never got excited about any of the fights he ever staged. It was his custom to stand on the outskirts of the crowd and pay little attention to what was happening in the ring. He had a seat in the front at the Garden but no one ever recalled having seen him occupy it.

Once he left the arena before the last round of a sensational fight to phone a friend about a fishing party. He was very fond of fishing.

Rickard was never happier than when his eye could roam over the huge gatherings he attracted to his spectacles. He paid little attention to either of the two Dempsey-Tunney fights. "The Long Count" only concerned him in that it left the way open for another Dempsey-Tunney bout.

Gambling was a passion with him, whether the stakes were high or low. He would sit all night in the Garden and bet 10 cents a bout on the amateur boxing matches. He enjoyed putting on an indoor golf course and would rather win a quarter from a boxing writer than $10,000 from a millionaire.

Knew Few Fighters
He knew few fighters outside the heavyweight division. Once he was returning from St. Louis with a party of newspaper men after signing Gene Tunney to fight Dempsey. The train stopped at Terre Haute, Ind., and a young yellow-haired boy climbed aboard.

"Hello, Mr. Rickard," he greeted the promoter.

"Hello, young fellow, what you doing way out here?"

"Oh, I live here."

"Yes, that's right. I forgot you did."

When the train pulled out, Rickard turned to a newspaperman and asked:

"Who's that kid who got on to talk to me?"

He was informed that the kid was Bud Taylor, world's bantam-weight champion, who had fought for Rickard several times.

Rickard's two favorite fighters were James J. Jeffries and Jack Dempsey. He thought Jeffries was the best, but always placed Dempsey on a par with Jeffries because he liked Dempsey better as a man.

Liked Toledo Fight
He thought Jeffries and Dempsey would have attracted a gate of $5,000,000 if they had happened along at the same time. The Dempsey of Toledo fought the best fight he ever saw. It was one of the big surprises of his life when Dempsey battered Willard down in two rounds.

"Dempsey was the most crushing hitter I ever saw," Rickard said, "but Jeffries could take more punishment than any man I ever watched. He was impossible to hurt in his prime."

Rickard was a man of simple tastes. His favorite dish was corn beef and cabbage, with beef steak and a close second. He liked to drink, but no one ever saw him drunk. He preferred cocktails and highballs to straight liquor.

He wore light colored suits most of the time. He carried a cane and hooked it over his right forearm when he was standing. When he was out in the open, he frequently used it to point with.

The most distinctive part of his dress was his hat. He was seldom seen without a hat on his head. He wore light colored fedoras and turned the brim down. He bought them by the dozens.

Almost Bald
Rickard was almost bald. He had a few straggling hairs on his dome which he combed in such a way as partially covered the bald part. He parted his hair almost down around his left ear.

He was an inveterate smoker. He chewed rather than smoked his cigars. Occasionally he chewed tobacco.

His voice was low and sometimes it was hard to understand what he was saying. He made mistakes in grammar. "Seed" for "saw" and "heard" for "heard" were his favorite slang expressions. He knew better, but once told newspapermen that they would have him saying "seed" and "heard" whether he said them or not so he always used them anyway.

"I never seed anything like it in my life," was the way of expressing surprise.

He never got excited or lost his temper. He was mild, shy and inconspicuous. He was optimistic about his own ventures. He was an easy man to talk to.

He had a lot of enemies. They knocked him, but he never paid any attention to them.

His lips were thin and straight. His eyes were deep set. He blinked them frequently.

Rickard Generous
His private office was a rendezvous for newspapermen. There was nothing high-hat or formal about Rickard. He was always natural. He wore his hat in his office and put his feet on his expensive mahogany desk which was built for President McKinley.

He was generous and often distributed half dollars to urinals who lived in the Garden neighborhood. All the Garden employees called him a "regular guy." He gave Christmas presents to all who worked for him.

His motto was "Always pay your I. O. U.'s and keep your credit good."

If he had lived Young Stribling probably would have become heavyweight champion. He believed in Stribling. There would have been nothing cooked about it. His confidence in Stribling would have meant a great deal to the Georgia boy.

Rickard had no intention of retiring. He wanted to play a little, but he was scheming to promote another one of his million dollar fights, with Dempsey as one principal when he died.

He had an uncanny fear of a knife. This fear hastened his death. He refused to be operated on until it was too late. He had an acute attack of appendicitis in 1921 while he was working on the Carpenter-Dempsey fight.

"I haven't got time to stop," he said, and had his appendix frozen.

He would have liked his own funeral. He would have thought the many things written about him after he died, "were good publicity." He wouldn't have liked it, if anyone had made him out a saint.

There never will be another Rickard.

ANTIOCH TOSSERS PLAY WILMINGTON

Stung by two straight defeats, Antioch College's Division "B" basketball team, which before the season opened had been characterized as the most promising since the near-championship outfit of four years ago, will endeavor to make a better showing against Wilmington College on the Wilmington floor Thursday night.

The Division "B" team has been defeated by Capital University, 47 to 30, and by Rio Grande College, 40 to 24. While the Antioch quintet is not expected to win, it hopes to offer stiff opposition.

Although all six league teams will be in action Friday night, no changes in the standing of the Miami Valley League are anticipated.

The league basketball campaign, now two weeks old, has so far been free from what may be termed upsets. There is only one prospect for a surprise Friday. Troy, although it is perhaps saying too much, might accidentally throw a monkey wrench into the machinery and defeat Sidney, Xenia and Piqua, however, should continue to share the league leadership by polishing off Miamisburg and Greenville, respectively, with the utmost ease.

As far as the Buccaneers are concerned, the league champions are not counting their chickens before they are hatched and are preparing for anything the Burgers have to offer and to give more in return.

The championship campaign enters the colorama this week. Only the Troy-Sidney game stands out among the others.

"Matinee basketball" will be given a trial at Columbus Saturday afternoon between Chicago and Ohio State. This will be an innovation in Western Conference basketball and other Big Ten teams may try the experiment if it is in any way successful.

The change in time was first suggested by Billy Ireland of the Columbus Dispatch in last Sunday's "Passing Show." The suggestion met with widespread approval due to the trials and tribulations of night parking at the state fair grounds.

It is said that if the attendance at Saturday's game comes up to expectations, all of the remaining home games on Ohio State's schedule this season may be played in the afternoon instead of at night.

CEDARVILLE YELLOW JACKETS DEFEATED BY FINDLAY 42-34

Findlay College, leader in the Northwest Ohio Conference basketball race, registered a straight victory in a non-conference game with the Cedarville College "Yellow Jackets," by a margin of 42 to 34 at Findlay Wednesday night.

Cedarville managed to knot the score at thirty-three points in the third quarter but could add only one more point to its total in the last ten minutes of play.

Cloyce Taylor, Findlay center, was the leading point-getter of the contest with six field goals and two free throws for fourteen points.

The defeat was the ninth of the season in eleven starts for Cedarville. The "Yellow Jackets" will meet Wilberforce University on the latter's floor Saturday night.

THE LIFE OF TEX RICKARD

Being A Colorful Account Of One Of America's Most Colorful Characters

CHAPTER XII
By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
Copyright, 1929, by United Press

Crowds, not individuals, were the only ones who ever really knew Tex Rickard. He had countless friends, but few, if any of them, ever penetrated his calm, unruffled front.

No sport, except golf, ever interested Rickard. He never got excited about any of the fights he ever staged. It was his custom to stand on the outside of the crowd and pay little attention to what was happening in the ring. He had a seat in the front at the Garden but no one ever recalled having seen him occupy it.

Once he left the arena before the last round of a sensational fight to phone a friend about a fishing party. He was very fond of fishing.

Rickard was never happier than when his eye could roam over the huge gatherings he attracted to his spectacles. He paid little attention to either of the two Dempsey-Tunney fights, "The Long Count" only concerned him in that it left the way open for another Dempsey-Tunney bout.

Gambling was a passion with him, whether the stakes were high or low. He would sit all night in the Garden and bet 10 cents a bout on the amateur boxing matches. He enjoyed putting on an indoor golf course and would rather win a quarter from a boxing writer than $10,000 from a millionaire.

Knew Few Fighters
He knew few fighters outside the heavyweight division. Once he was returning from St. Louis with a party of newspaper men after signing Gene Tunney to fight Dempsey. The train stopped at Terre Haute, Ind., and a young yellow-haired boy climbed aboard.

"Hello, Mr. Rickard," he greeted the promoter.

"Hello, young feller, what you doing way out here?"

"Oh, I live here."

"Yes, that's right. I forgot you did."

When the train pulled out, Rickard turned to a newspaperman and asked:

"Who's that kid who got on to talk to me?"

He was informed that the kid was Bud Taylor, world's bantamweight champion, who had fought for Rickard several times.

Rickard's two favorite fighters were James J. Jeffries and Jack Dempsey. He thought Jeffries was the best, but always placed Dempsey on a par with Jeffries because he liked Dempsey better as a man.

Liked Toledo Fight
He thought Jeffries and Dempsey would have attracted a gate of $5,000,000 if they had happened along at the same time. The Dempsey of Toledo fought the best fight he ever saw. It was one of the big surprises of his life when Dempsey battered Willard down in two rounds.

"Dempsey was the most crushing hitter I ever saw," Rickard said, but Jeffries could take more punishment than any man I ever watched. He was impossible to hurt in his prime.

Rickard was a man of simple tastes. His favorite dish was corn beef and cabbage, with beef stew and steak a close second. He liked to drink, but no one ever saw him drunk. He preferred cocktails and highballs to straight liquor.

He wore light colored suits most of the time. He carried a cane and hooked it over his right forearm when he was standing. When he was out in the open, he frequently used it to point with.

The most distinctive part of his dress was his hat. He was seldom seen without a hat on his head. He wore light colored fedoras and turned the brim down. He bought them by the dozens.

Almost Bald
Rickard was almost bald. He had a few straggling hairs on his dome which he combed in such a way as partially covered the bald part. He parted his hair almost down around his left ear.

He was an inveterate smoker. He chewed rather than smoked his cigars. Occasionally he chewed tobacco.

His voice was low and sometimes it was hard to understand what he was saying. He made mistakes in grammar. "Seed" for "saw" and "heard" for "heard" were his favorite slang expressions. He knew better, but once told newspapermen that they would have him saying "seed" and "heard" whether he said them or not so he always used them anyway.

"I never seed anything like it in my life," was the way of expressing surprise.

He never got excited or lost his temper. He was mild, shy and inconspicuous. He was optimistic about his own ventures. He was an easy man to talk to.

He had a lot of enemies. They knocked him, but he never paid any attention to them.

His lips were thin and straight. His eyes were deep set. He blinked them frequently.

Rickard Generous
His private office was a rendezvous for newspapermen. There was nothing high-hat or formal about Rickard. He was always natural. He wore his hat in his office and put his feet on his expensive mahogany desk which was built for President McKinley.

He was generous and often distributed half dollars to urchins who lived in the Garden neighborhood.

All the Garden employees called him a "regular guy." He gave Christmas presents to all who worked for him.

ANTIOCH TOSSERS PLAY WILMINGTON

Stung by two straight defeats, Antioch College's Division "B" basketball team, which before the season opened had been characterized as the most promising since the near-championship outfit of four years ago, will endeavor to make a better showing against Wilmington College on the Wilmington floor Thursday night.

The Division "B" team has been defeated by Capital University, 47 to 30, and by Rio Grande College, 40 to 24. While the Antioch quintet is not expected to win, it hopes to offer stiff opposition.

AMERICAN LEGION

NEWS

The American Legion has set aside the week of February 3 to 9 as "Know The Legion Week," during which time it proposes to enlighten the public on the aims, purposes and accomplishments of that organization. Some of the most prominent Legionnaires, who have held offices in The American Legion and who are thoroughly familiar with the work of that organization have accepted speaking engagements during that week. Some of the subjects to be stressed by these speakers will be legislation affecting the disabled World War veterans and their dependents; the Legion as a civic and patriotic organization and its place in the community. These speakers will also touch on the subject of rendering relief in emergencies and catastrophes, such as were caused by the storms in Florida, the floods in Mississippi, California and Tennessee, the cyclone in Lorain and Sandusky, when the Legion appeared on the scene and took charge of feeding and clothing the needy, patrolling the "stricken areas, clearing away the debris, burying the dead, etc.

This organization from its very inception has assumed the responsibility of seeing to it that adequate provisions are made by the government to care for the sick and wounded veterans and their dependents. The American Legion is responsible for the creation of the Veterans Bureau, for the building of government hospitals, and for the legislation providing financial relief for this group. Attention is also called to work accomplished in Ohio through the Service Department of The American Legion last year, when $253 cases were handled, recovering more than $340,000 for these veterans. This sum represents monthly awards in initial checks only. Hospitalization was secured for more than 300 during this same period.

ACID STOMACH RUINS APPETITE

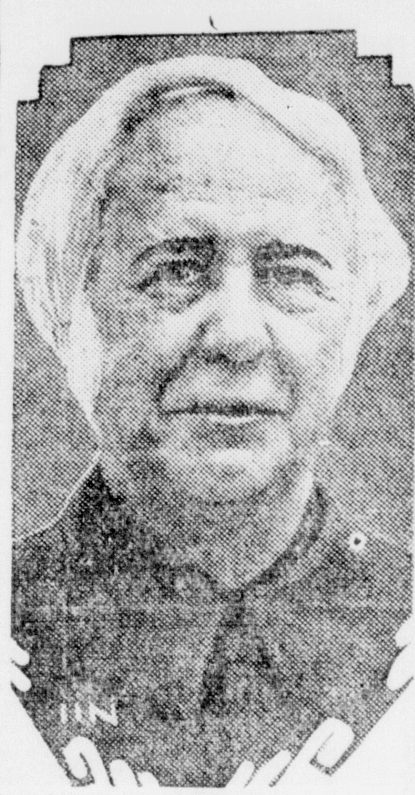

Thin, pale people—the despondent sort who never have an appetite, and complain of headaches, indigestion, dizziness, biliousness, usually have too much acid in their stomach. And unless they displace it, any food they eat turns into sour bile and foul gases, which poison their system.

Pape's Diapiesin dissolves that poisonous acid, sweetens the stomach and digests your meals. Many thousands of people have brought back the appetite of their youth and gained weight simply by chewing one of the pleasant tablets of Pape's Diapiesin after meals. It does what it promises. That's the reason 5 million packages are used a year—ask your nearest druggist for it.

JAMES WEAD DIES

James Wead, 80, native of Xenia, died Wednesday morning at the Ohio Masonic Home, Springfield, where he was a resident. He was born August 31, 1848, in Xenia. Two sons survive him. They are: Vern Wead, Springfield, and Carl Wead, West Palm Beach, Fla. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Asked to Retire!

A recent photo of General Bramwell Booth, supreme leader of the Salvation Army, who, because of old age and infirmities which incapacitate him from active direction of the organization, has been asked to retire "with full honors." The aged leader had previously suggested a commission of high ranking officials as the ruling body pending his convalescence. This was rejected.

STOP THE FAT AND GET THIN

The way to reduction is to stop the formation of fat. Modern science has found that way—by turning your food into fuel and energy—by supplying a natural element that helps do that. It is much better than starvation. That modern, scientific method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality, are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects are beneficial, and why they all occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

AMERICAN LEGION

NEWS

The American Legion has set aside the week of February 3 to 9 as "Know The Legion Week," during which time it proposes to enlighten the public on the aims, purposes and accomplishments of that organization. Some of the most prominent Legionnaires, who have held offices in The American Legion and who are thoroughly familiar with the work of that organization have accepted speaking engagements during that week. Some of the subjects to be stressed by these speakers will be, legislation affecting the disabled World War veterans and their dependents, the Legion as a civic and patriotic organization and its place in the community. These speakers will also touch on the subject of rendering relief in emergencies and catastrophes, such as were caused by the storms in Florida, the floods in Mississippi, California and Tennessee, the cyclone in Lorain and Sandusky, when the Legion appeared on the scene and took charge of feeding and clothing the needy, patrolling the stricken areas, clearing away the debris, burying the dead, etc.

This organization from its very inception has assumed the responsibility of seeing to it that adequate provisions are made by the government to care for the sick and wounded veterans and their dependents. The American Legion is responsible for the creation of the Veterans Bureau, for the building of government hospitals, and for the legislation providing financial relief for this group. Attention is also called to work accomplished in Ohio through the Service Department of The American Legion last year, when 8253 cases were handled, recovering more than $349,000 for these veterans. This sum represents monthly awards in initial checks only. Hospitalization was secured for more than 300 during this same period.

ACID STOMACH RUINS APPETITE

Thin, pale people—the despondent sort who never have an appetite, and complain of headaches, indigestion, dizziness, biliousness, usually have too much acid in their stomach. And unless they displace it, any food they eat turns into sour bile and foul gases, which poison their system.

Pape's Diapepsin dissolves that poisonous acid, sweetens the stomach and digests your meals. Many thousands of people have brought back the appetite of their youth and gained weight simply by chewing one of the pleasant tablets of Pape's Diapepsin after meals.

It does what it promises. That's the reason 5 million packages are used a year—ask your nearest druggist for it.

JAMES WEAD DIES

James Wead, 80, native of Xenia, died Wednesday morning at the Ohio Masonic Home, Springfield, where he was a resident. He was born August 31, 1848, in Xenia. Two sons survive him. They are: Vern Wead, Springfield, and Carl Wead, West Palm Beach, Fla. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Asked to Retire!

A recent photo of General Bramwell Booth, supreme leader of the Salvation Army, who, because of old age and infirmities which incapacitate him from active direction of the organization, has been asked to retire "with full honors." The aged leader had previously suggested a commission of high ranking officials as the ruling body pending his convalescence. This was rejected.

STOP THE FAT AND GET THIN

The way to reduction is to stop the formation of fat. Modern science has found that way—by turning your food into fuel and energy—by supplying a natural element that helps do that. It is much better than starvation. That modern scientific method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality, are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects are beneficial, and why they all occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

SALARY OF MAYOR MAY BE DISCUSSED

What salary Karl R. Babb, newly-appointed mayor of Xenia, shall receive during 1929 is expected to form the principal topic of discussion at the regular City Commission meeting Thursday night.

Under the present city ordinance the mayor receives an annual salary of $1,650. Commissioner E. E. Lightner wants it reduced to $650. Commissioner Jacob Kany favors a salary of $1,000 and Mayor Babb has expressed himself as willing to accept a reduction of $300, reducing the salary to $1,350.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. (Don't old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for every-day ailments. Any hour of the day or night that baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE CLOCKS

SOME clocks annoy me. Some, I find, Just make me vow I will not mind. The more they strike with scolding tap, The more I do not care a rap!

Grandfather's clock is so sedate That I prefer to come home late, Rebellious, tardy, slow, by choice, To tempt his ponderous warning voice.

But I've an old Dutch clock I treasure That makes of promptitude a pleasure. At work or playing, I rejoice To heed its soft, cajoling voice.

I must obey, some way or other, As I would heed a dear old mother. Its gentle face beams down so kind It would be rudeness not to mind!

BOY SCOUT ESSAY CONTEST IS LAUNCHED; CAMP TRIP IS PRIZE

The prospect of spending a week of sheets of paper, Neatness, spelling and general merit of the essays will be deciding factors considered by the judges in making the awards.

The contest, which opens Thursday and closes at noon Wednesday, January 30, is open to every registered Boy Scout in Greene County. Scouts who participate in the contest will write an essay not to exceed 300 words on the subject, "Why I Am a Boy Scout." The explanation may be made in fewer words, however. This is optional, but 300 words is the maximum.

Three prizes are being offered by the District Committee for the three best essays on the subject. The contest winner will enjoy life at the Yellow Springs Scout camp free of charge and at the expense of the committee for one week.

Second prize is an official Scout flashlight while third prize will be $1, entitling the winner to that value of Scout merchandise from local merchants.

The three winning essays will be published in full in The Gazette, as will also the next seven essays deemed worthy of honorable mention.

The deadline, it is emphasized, is at 12 o'clock noon January 30 and all essays must be in the hands of City School Superintendent Louis Hammerle, chairman of the Scout Court of Honor, by that hour and date.

The essays will be judged by the members of the Court of Honor and prize winners will be announced as soon as possible after the contest closes.

Rules of the contest are simple. Essays to receive consideration must be written on only one side

Money for the building, estimated at between $80,000 and $100,000, will be furnished from a federal fund, according to Superintendent Aultman, who is actively interested in the matter. The building's construction then only hinges on the lot being obtained in Xenia.

It is planned to use the building for all big assemblies, particularly for the schools and athletic events. Seats will be removable, permitting the auditorium to be used for diversified entertainment.

Capt. O. H. Cornwell, of the local National Guard unit, is enthusiastically interested in the plans, since the local outfit can have use of the structure.

"I light a Lucky and go light on the sweets

That's how I keep in good shape and always feel peppy."

Al Jolson
Famous comedian and star of song.

Something sensible. "Better to light a Lucky whenever you crave fattening sweets." It brings to men the health and vigor that come with avoiding overweight. To women it offers a slender, fashionable figure.

20,679 physicians have stated that Lucky Strike is less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes. Very likely this is due to toasting which removes impurities. This same process, toasting, improves and develops the flavor of the world's finest tobaccos. This means that there is a flavor in Luckies which is a delightful alternative for the things that make you fat. That's why "It's Toasted" is your assurance that there's real health in Luckies—they're good for you!

Keep fit—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. That's what many men have been doing for years. They know the evidence of prominent athletes whose favorite cigarette is Lucky Strike and who say Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY
INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

SALARY OF MAYOR MAY BE DISCUSSED

What salary Karl R. Babb, newly-appointed mayor of Xenia, shall receive during 1925 is expected to form the principal topic of discussion at the regular City Commission meeting Thursday night.

Under the present city ordinance the mayor receives an annual salary of $1,650. Commissioner E. E. Lighthizer wants it reduced to $650. Commissioner Jacob Kany favors a salary of $1,000 and Mayor Babb has expressed himself as willing to accept a reduction of $300, reducing the salary to $1,350.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product, a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use, in emergencies, or for every day ailments. Any hour of the day or night that baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

CLOCKS

SOME clocks annoy me. Some, I find, Just make me vow I will not mind. The more they strike with scolding tap, The more I do not care a rap!

Grandfather's clock is so sedate That I prefer to come home late, Rebellious, tardy, slow, by choice, To tempt his ponderous warning voice.

But I've an old Dutch clock I treasure That makes of promptitude a pleasure. At work or playing, I rejoice To heed its soft, cajoling voice.

I must obey, some way or other, As I would heed a dear old mother. Its gentle face beams down so kind It would be rudeness not to mind!

BOY SCOUT ESSAY CONTEST IS LAUNCHED; CAMP TRIP IS PRIZE

The prospect of spending a week, of sheets of paper, Neatness, spell, next summer at Camp Miami at ing and general merit of the essays Yellow Springs is expected to re- will be deciding factors considered sult in many entrants in an essay contest for Greene County Boy Scouts being announced by the Xenia District Scout Committee.

The contest, which opens Thursday and closes at noon Wednesday, January 30, is open to every registered Boy Scout in Greene County. Scouts who participate in the contest will write an essay not to exceed 300 words on the subject, "Why I Am a Boy Scout." The explanation may be made in fewer words, however. This is optional, but 300 words is the maximum. Three prizes are being offered by the District Committee for the three best essays on the subject. The contest winner will enjoy life at the Yellow Springs Scout camp free of charge and at the expense of the committee for one week.

Second prize is an official Scout flashlight while third prize will be $1, entitling the winner to that value of Scout merchandise from local merchants.

The three winning essays will be published in full in The Gazette, as will also the next seven essays deemed worthy of honorable mention.

The deadline, it is emphasized, is at 12 o'clock noon January 30 and all essays must be in the hands of City School Superintendent Louis Hammerle, chairman of the Scout Court of Honor, by that hour and date.

Rules of the contest are simple. Essays to receive consideration must be written on only one side ent Aultman to Columbus soon, to discuss the matter with the adjutant general and R. D. Williamson, Greene County representative.

Money for the building, estimated at between $80,000 and $100,000, will be furnished from a federal fund, according to Superintendent Aultman, who is actively interested in the matter. The building's construction then only hinges on the lot being obtained in Xenia.

It is planned to use the building for all big assemblies, particularly for the schools and athletic events. Seats will be removable, permitting the auditorium to be used for diversified entertainment.

Capt. O. H. Cornwell, of the local National Guard unit, is enthusiastically interested in the plans, since the local outfit can have use of the structure.

"not a bad town"

"This isn't a bad town—this Xenia!"

Two strangers walked down Detroit Street and at Second one made that remark to the other.

It is hereby recommended, without comment, to those who:

1. Prefer knocking to boosting;
2. Have little faith in the city in which they live;
3. Confirm this lack of faith by buying elsewhere.

* * * * *

In these days when civic patriotism is exploited by the so-called intelligentsia under the title of "Babbitry", it has come to be considered provincial to indulge in home-town boosting.

But boosting is a type of civic tonic that overcomes the lethargy that saps the municipal life-blood. It is a self-evident fact that a city must progress to keep from going backward. There is no such thing as standing still unless it would be possible to stop the progress that is going on all around us in other cities.

This progress in other cities, is a rebuke to the conscience of Xenia and of Xenians. Here and there a city has instituted white-way lighting by installing the boulevard light system. Here and there factories have been brought to the city; a modern hotel has been built, or a new theater, or a down-town office building. These, things in their way, are marks of progress.

Xenia is aptly situated to welcome progress. It has rail facilities, good streets, good schools and churches, good utility conditions. It is geographically located in a healthful section of Ohio, not far from the United States center of population, within the district conceded to be the industrial hub of the nation.

A little old-fashioned home-town boosting would help. Anything to bring about an awakening of civic conscience to the fact that Xenia was built for finer things than to stand still and rust out.

Civic boosting is best expressed in home-buying. It shows a healthy effort on the part of Xenians to do their share. By supporting home-town merchants, Xenia is supported. Home-town buying is a good tonic for municipal lethargy. It is bound to create an appetite for bigger and better things for Xenia.

SHERIFF TATE FOILS JAIL DELIVERY PLOT

Officers Discover Hack-Saw Blades; Blame Three Alleged Auto Thieves For Attempt To Cut Opening In Ceiling.

Sheriff Ohmer Tate and his two deputies nipped in the bud at noon today what was characterized as a plot hatched by three prisoners to deliver themselves from the Greene County Jail.

While making their customary inspection of the cell block at noon, the officers discovered four hack-saw blades hidden above the cells of three prisoners held on charges of auto theft, and further investigation led to evidence that they had been at work for possibly a week attempting to cut their way to freedom through the ceiling.

It is believed the blades were stolen by the youthful inmates from employees of the Jeffries and Pudge contracting firm, who were engaged about a week ago in making repairs to the interior of the cell corridor, damaged by fire about a month ago when two prisoners made an unsuccessful attempt to burn down the jail building with possible delivery in view.

The prisoners charged with the attempt to save their way to liberty are Jack McCabe, 22, John Dean, 21, and Thomas Moore, 19, all of Chicago, Ill., who are awaiting grand jury action on charges of auto theft.

They were arrested at Cincinnati, Ky., January 8, and returned to Xenia for the alleged theft of an auto from Russell Bales, N. Detroit St., January 6. The car was recovered.

Sheriff Tate discovered that the youths had made considerable progress in cutting through the ceiling, which is covered with steel sheeting one-fourth of an inch thick. If successful, the prisoners could have elevated themselves into the attic and in that event Sheriff Tate is uncertain what procedure they could have followed in getting out of the building.

The youths had cut around the ventilators at the top and had cut about six and eight inches of the sheeting in two different places. They kept the blades hidden on top of the ventilator.

Sheriff Tate, after foiling the plot, placed the youths in solitary confinement indefinitely.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Teams have been organized and are now actively engaged in a magazine subscription contest. The entire senior and junior high school is participating in the affair by which it is hoped enough money may be raised to complete payments on the new piano, recently purchased.

At a recent meeting of officers of the three upper classes, a schedule for noon hour candy sales was mapped out. By this schedule the sophomore class will sponsor the sales until March 25 when the seniors will take them over. The graduating class will have charge of the concession until spring vacation and it will then be transferred to the juniors.

The first "sandwich sale" of the year will be sponsored next Tuesday afternoon by the senior class. The sale is in charge of Frances Marshall, Marjorie Hook, Carolyn Hill, Paul Grant and Irvin South. Work on the "Blue and White" minstrel show to be given February 13 and 14 by the Boys' Glee Club, is going ahead rapidly. The production will be in two parts and is under the direction of William Hugh Miller.

KAISER OBSERVES 70TH BIRTHDAY

Ceremonies reminiscent of the old days in the palace at Berlin have characterized festivities attendant to the seventieth birthday, Jan. 27, of former Kaiser Wilhelm, at Doorn, Holland, where he lives in exile with his second wife, the Princess Hermine. German generals, representatives, war veterans and Field Marshal von Mackensen have made the trip to Doorn to pay him homage, but the birthday itself has been reserved for a reunion with his sons, daughters and grandchildren. Upper left, a recent photo; right, his wife. Below, Wilhelm and the princess walking at Doorn, and, right, the kaiser at the height of his power, in 1915.

new bills can be introduced only if the author has the consent of three-fifths of the members of the house. The only exception is that appropriation measures approved by the finance committee may be submitted at any time.

The proposed date for closing the gates against new bills is the one usually fixed by the house, the third Monday in February, and the rule is designed to get all proposed legislation into the hopper so that the work to be accomplished will not be delayed by last-minute measures.

The proposed rules are to come up for adoption by the house next Monday night. A fight may be made at that time by a minority faction, headed by Rep. Joseph G. Bender, Cleveland to liberalize certain sections and to shear the leaders of some of their power. Indications are this move will be futile and that the rules as drafted will be adopted.

Scheduled hearing of the administration bill to repeal the Pence utility rate law, originally set for next Monday night before the senate utilities committee, was postponed by Chairman Kuhns, of Dayton, until the night of February 4.

The postponement of this bill was decided upon after opponents of the measure had declared arrangements were being made to "railroad" the measure through without giving these affected a chance to study it and present their arguments or proposed changes for consideration.

Only six new bills were introduced at yesterday's session, all of them on the senate side.

The total of bills introduced, even with the house taking a temporary vacation, stood at 193 at the end of the day.

The new measure in the senate included one to provide for "bad-checking" all places where gambling is conducted, including race tracks and "any game of chance." Senator J. Lowry Miller, Butler County, was the author.

Senator Miles S. Kuhns, Dayton, sponsored a bill to provide for a code regulating installation of hot air furnaces in residences and to create a state licensing board to enforce the regulations and issue licenses to contractors and for the installing of furnaces. The contractor would be $100 for their permits. The homeowner wishing to install a furnace would have to pay $5 to the county auditor for his license.

Another bill sponsored by Kuhns would require persons and corporations owning cemeteries to set aside 25 per cent of their receipts from the sale or rental of burial lots, to be invested in order to provide funds for the perpetual maintenance of the cemetery and graves.

bank, holding that position for about eighteen years.

During the World War he was chairman of the Greene County Red Cross and was active in that capacity. He was a graduate of Xenia Central High School and of the Rose Polytechnic Institute, specializing in engineering, and was a member of the Xenia Elks' Lodge and the Presbyterian Church.

While not an inveterate joiner, he entered the Masonic order early in life, though highly of his tenets and attained the 32nd degree. He was a Mason for twenty-five years, was a member of the Scottish Rite and Shrine in Dayton and was a Shriner for twenty-two years.

Early in life he was much interested in athletics. Comparatively late in life he took up golf and was one of the most enthusiastic addicts of that game at the Xenia Country Club. He was also a member of the Dayton Country Club.

Mr. Kelly was almost child-like in his yearning for golfing weather—but always less eager for the game itself than for the chance to participate in good-natured rivalry with his friends. In his youth he took an active interest in many forms of athletics, was at one time an amateur baseball player and was particularly fond of outdoor sports.

He married Miss Alberta Smart in this city in 1933 and she survived him along with two daughters, Catharine, now Mrs. Chalmers Murphy, and Margaret, who is Mrs. Henry C. Flynn. He also leaves two brothers, William B. St. Petersburg, Fla., and Fred C. Kelly, noted writer, of Peninsula, O., both younger than he.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

FUNERAL FRIDAY

Funeral services for Dr. Harold Hogue, 26, who died at City Hospital at Boston, Mass., from double pneumonia last Monday night, will be conducted at his residence in Springfield at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon with interment at a Springfield cemetery.

Dr. Hogue was distantly related to several residents of Greene County and his father, Dr. D. W. Hogue, practices in Springfield.

SUFFOCATED IN BED

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24.—Daniel Morgan, 65, was suffocated here last night when the mattress of his bed caught fire, apparently from a cigarette or pipe. Morgan was still alive when he was taken from his home but died a few moments later.

CHAPTER LVII

Byrd opened her eyes and saw Tiny standing by her bedside. The slanting rays of the November sun fell obliquely over the heavy, ornate furniture of the guest room.

"For Pete's sake," gasped Byrd, "what time is it?"

"About eleven o'clock," answered Tiny, smiling. "Have you had a good sleep, Byrdkins? I brought you a bite for breakfast."

Byrd's brow puckered into a hundred tiny wrinkles.

"I remember passing out while I was dancing, and that's all I do remember," she said slowly. "What happened afterwards?"

Tiny told her while she arranged the breakfast tray on the little stand by her side. She told her how Larry had carried her up stairs and that it was only after she, herself, had pulled off her mask that they discovered that she wasn't the little Russian dancer after all.

One shock had followed the other. They discovered, too, that she had had her beautiful hair cut off.

"You sure took the wind out of our sails," remarked Tiny. "It was the best stunt I ever saw anyone get away with! That accent and your dancing!"

"Better than India's stunts?" asked Byrd weakly.

"India!" exclaimed Tiny grimly. "Why, she's just dish water compared with you. She's got a little patter that she gets away with, goodness only knows how. There's nothing professional about it. Why, Byrd, you could go on the stage!"

Tiny was still exhilarated over the success of her party.

"Everybody said it was the most unusual party they'd ever gone to, and you and that Russian were the making of it! Fred's ending each of you a check for fifty dollars. Said it was worth twice that much," continued Tiny.

"Well, I had more fun than I ever had at a party in all my life," smiled Byrd.

"Poor Larry!" Tiny's voice became less shrill. "I never saw anybody so completely shattered. First, he came expecting to find you here. Then, when you could have seen his expression when he had seen the marvelous Russian that everybody was talking about and the men were so dippy over. Then he almost collapsed when he learned it was you who fainted. He didn't go home until the doctor assured him it was only nerve exhaustion and gave him a sedative until he came."

"We want you to have a doctor?" asked Byrd, suddenly frowning.

"Oh, Tiny, I surely didn't need a doctor."

"You sure did, rosebud, and he said you were to stay in bed a whole week. I'd like to see you try to get out of this house while Fred and I are here in it. Tiny's arms crept around Byrd's neck, back, honeydew. You've been doing too much lately."

"Well, let's see," considered Byrd, still frowning. "Mr. Polk won't need me any more because his secretary comes back Monday. And he was going to start me on some other job in another department. Call up Pat and ask her to tell him to call on me this afternoon and get my mail and toilet things. Tell her to explain to them that I'm with friends."

Pat arrived early in the afternoon. In her breezy clothes and in a breezy manner, carrying an armful of late chrysanthemums from her mother-in-law's garden, she came to the door.

"Where did you get the idea for a stunt like that?" she asked.

She hopped onto the bed, landing squarely on Byrd's foot.

Then her eyes fell on Byrd's short hair.

"And your hair! It's simply gorgeous, gorgeous! Looks like yellow taffy! Gee, I wonder what dad will say! Say, your old beau Remond called to say that he wanted to give you lessons the rest of your life for nothing! He thinks you're the next Pavlova!"

"I'd like to try dyeing mine that color," said Tiny, anxiously. "I've had it every color but that one."

"Why don't you?" asked Pat. "The papers could write it up this way: A blonde brunette committed suicide. She died by her own hand!"

The telephone rang for the twentieth time.

"It's one of those society reporters," said Tiny, impatiently. "The papers have been calling me up all morning. They want to get some stories about the Russian dancers. I don't know what to tell them."

"Tell them they've gone to Chicago to fill an engagement," said Byrd, "and don't, for goodness sake, tell them the truth way those reporters bother you all the time!"

"Isn't it the limit that those reporters bother you all the time?" Tiny remarked again as she started out the door.

It was the first time in Tiny's life that she had ever given a party that was considered important enough to be written up and she was frightenedly impressed by it.

"People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw parties!" Pat called after her, winking at Byrd. "Well, Byrd," said Pat, consolingly, "you've got Larry coming around in circles and quadrangles. He doesn't know whether he's standing on his head or his heels."

"He'd better try his heels. His head hasn't supported him yet! Even though he's tried standing on it most of the time," said Byrd, sharply.

"Aren't you being a little rough on him?" inquired Pat. "Say, here are your letters. One from dad, I think."

Byrd seized her father's first and read it aloud.

"Dear kids," she read, "I've written Larry thanking him for the check and asking an explanation. I dropped dead when I got back the whole amount with interest. How come? All business in Jacksonville stopped until I hear from you."

Then she opened a second letter. A check dropped out. Nothing else. But it was a check for two hundred dollars and was signed by India. Byrd showed it to Pat.

"Good egg!" laughed Pat, approvingly. "I didn't think you had it in you."

"I'm not Jim Hamilton's daughter for nothing!" laughed Byrd, as she repeated Pat's own phrase that she had used only a short time ago.

Pat went to the mirror and slipped her new felt hat over her head, completely drowning both eyes.

"They'll take you to the home for the blind if you go groping along the street," she warned her. When tiny came back into the room she carried two identical boxes containing flowers.

"They're from the same florist's, and not a card in either of them," she remarked disgustedly.

"Tiny didn't like guessing games. She could only understand what was patent and obvious."

"And both of them must have bank accounts," she added, as she removed the flowers from their waxed wrappers, "for American beauties are twenty-four dollars a dozen."

Byrd said she didn't have the slightest idea who had sent them. "Larry may have sent one box," guessed Tiny, perplexed, "but who in Carry Nation's nation sent the other? Haven't you the slightest idea?"

Byrd shook her head.

"Mr. Polk," she said, "doesn't even know I'm sick."

As Pat banged out of the front door, she spoke to someone coming in.

Then Byrd heard a man's voice in the hall. It was Dr. Newcomb questioning Tiny, asking her how Byrd had slept and how she had felt during the morning and whether she had an appetite.

Byrd lay back among the pillows and turned her head and drew the comforter up around her shoulders.

"How's the ballet dancer today?" asked Dr. Newcomb, with eyes twinkling.

He walked briskly toward the bed. Under his disarming smile, Byrd's fears slipped from her and a sudden relief surged through her body. Of course, he couldn't know!

"The only thing that ailed me, doctor," Byrd smiled up at him, "was that I needed a good sleep."

"Agreed!" he said, heartily. "This week you've got to spend all your waking hours sleeping!"

He took down the thermometer and placed it between her lips and took her pulse.

He read the thermometer with a quizzical expression narrowing his bright eyes, and for a second Byrd was again apprehensive. Then he smiled.

"All you need is a week's rest, and this is the best sanitarium I know of," he said kindly.

"Oh, I'll be all right by tomorrow," said Byrd, casually. She wished he wasn't so insistent that she stay with the Obermans. She could rest just as well at the Kellys, and there she would be away from Tiny's too solicitous attentions.

"Well, well, we'll see," he said. "I'll drop in tomorrow."

Byrd's tiny, strained for the words that passed between them as they stood for a minute in the hall

KAISER OBSERVES 70TH BIRTHDAY

Ceremonies reminiscent of the old days in the palace at Berlin have characterized festivities attendant to the seventieth birthday, Jan. 27, of former Kaiser Wilhelm, at Doorn, Holland, where he lives in exile with his second wife, the Princess Hermine. German generals, representatives, war veterans and Field Marshal von Mackensen have made the trip to Doorn to pay him homage, but the birthday itself has been reserved for a reunion with his sons, daughters and grandchildren. OHIO LEGISLATURE HAS APPROPRIATED $28,790,526 NOW

New bills can be introduced only if the author has the consent of three-fifths of the members of the house. The only exception is that appropriation measures approved by the finance committee may be submitted at any time.

The proposed date for closing the gates against new bills is the one usually fixed by the house, the third Monday in February, and the rule is designed to get all proposed legislation into the hopper so that the work to be accomplished will not be delayed by last-minute measures.

The proposed rules are to come up for adoption by the house next Monday night. A fight may be made as at that time by a minority faction, headed by Rep. Joseph G. Bender, Cleveland, to liberalize certain sections and to shear the leaders of some of their power. Indications are this move will be futile and that the rules as drafted will be approved.

Scheduled hearing of the administration bill to repeal the Pence utility law, originally set for next Monday night before the senate utilities committee, was postponed by Chairman Kuhns, of Dayton, until the night of February 4.

The postponement, it was said, was decided upon after opponents of the measure had declared "arrangements" were being made to "pull" the bill through, without giving those affected a chance to study it and present their arguments or proposed changes for consideration.

Only six new bills were introduced at yesterday's session, all of them on the senate side.

The total of bills introduced, even with the house taking a temporary vacation, stood at 193 at the end of the day.

The new measure in the senate included one to provide for "padding" all places where gambling is conducted, including race tracks and "any game of chance." Senator J. Lowry Miller, Butler County, was the author.

Senator Miles S. Kuhns, Dayton, sponsored a bill to provide for a code regulating installation of hot air furnaces in residences and to create a state licensing board to enforce the regulations and issue licenses to contractors and for the installing of furnaces. The contractors would pay $100 for their permits. The home-owner wishing to install a furnace would have to pay $5 to the county auditor for his license.

Another bill sponsored by Kuhns would require persons and corporations owning cemeteries to set aside 25 per cent of their receipts from the sale or rental of burial lots, to be invested in order to provide funds for the perpetual maintenance of the cemetery and graves.

GEORGE R. KELLY CALLED BY DEATH EARLY THURSDAY

bank, holding that position for about eighteen years.

During the World War he was chairman of the Greene County Red Cross and was active in that capacity. He was a graduate of Xenia Central High School and of the Rose Polytechnic Institute, specializing in engineering, and was a member of the Scottish Rite and Shrine in Dayton and was a Shriner for twenty-two years.

Early in life he was much interested in athletics. Comparatively late in life he took up golf and was one of the most enthusiastic addicts of that game at the Xenia Country Club. He was also a member of the Dayton Country Club.

Mr. Kelly was almost child-like in his yearning for golfing weather, but always less eager for the game itself than for the chance to participate in good-natured rivalry with his friends. In his youth he took an active interest in many forms of athletics, was at one time an amateur baseball player and was particularly fond of out-door sports.

He married Miss Alberta Smart in this city in 1893 and she survives him along with two daughters, Catherine, now Mrs. Chalmers W. Murphy, and Margaret, who is Mrs. Henry C. Flynn. He also leaves two brothers, William B. St. Petersburg, Fla., and Fred C. Kelly, noted writer, of Peninsula, O., both younger than he.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

FUNERAL FRIDAY

Funeral services for Dr. Harold Hogue, 26, who died at City Hospital at Boston, Mass., from double pneumonia last Monday night, will be conducted at his residence in Springfield at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon with interment at a Springfield cemetery.

Dr. Hogue was distantly related to several residents of Greene County and his father, Dr. D. W. Hogue, practices in Springfield.

SUFFOCATED IN BED

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24.—Daniel Morgan, 65, was suffocated here last night when the mattress of his bed caught fire, apparently from a cigarette or pipe. Morgan was still alive when he was taken from his home but died a few moments later.

LET'S LIVE! MILDRED LAMB

CHAPTER LVII

Byrd opened her eyes and saw Tiny standing by her bedside. The slanting rays of the November sun fell obliquely over the heavy, ornate furniture of the guest room.

"For Pete's sake," gasped Byrd, "what time is it?"

"About eleven to'clock," answered Tiny, smiling. "Have you had a good sleep, Byrdkins? I brought you a little for breakfast."

Byrd's brow puckered into a hundred tiny wrinkles.

"I remember passing out while I was dancing, and that's all I do remember," she said slowly. "What happened afterwards?"

"Tiny told her while she arranged the breakfast tray on the little stand by her side. She told her how Larry had carried her up the stairs and that it was only after she, herself, had pulled off her mask that they discovered that she wasn't the little Russian dancer after all."

One shock had followed the other. They discovered, too, that she had had her beautiful hair cut.

"You sure took the wind out of our sails," remarked Tiny. "It was the best stunt I ever saw anyone get away with! That accent and your dancing!"

"Better than India's stunts?" asked Byrd weakly.

"India?" exclaimed Tiny grimly. "Why, she's just dish water compared with you. She's got a little patter that she gets away with, goodness only knows how. There's nothing professional about it. Why, Byrd, you could go on the stage!"

Tiny was still exhilarated over the success of her party.

"Everybody said it was the most unusual party they'd ever gone to, and you and that Russian were the making of it! Fred's sending each of you a check for fifty dollars. Said it was worth twice that much," continued Tiny.

"Well, I had more fun than I ever had at a party in all my life," smiled Byrd.

"Poor Larry!" Tiny's voice became less shrill. "I never saw anybody so completely shattered. First, he came expecting to find you here. Then I wish you could have seen his expression when he learned that you were the marvelous Russian that everybody was talking about and the men were so dippy over. Then he almost collapsed when he learned it was only the doctor assured him it was only nerve exhaustion and sat and held your hand until he came."

"Did you say you had a doctor?" asked Byrd, suddenly frowning.

"Oh, Tiny, I surely didn't need a doctor."

"You sure did, rosebud, and he said you were to stay in bed a whole week. I'd like to see you try to get out of this house while Fred and I are living in it." Tiny's arms crept around Byrd's neck.

"We want you to get your strength back, honeydew. You've been doing too much lately."

"Well, let's see," considered Byrd, still frowning. "Mr. Polk won't need me any more because his secretary comes back Monday. And he was going to start me on some other job in another department. Call up Pat and ask her to stop at the Kellys this afternoon and get my mail and toilet things. Tell her to explain to them that I'm with friends."

Pat arrived early in the afternoon, in her breezy clothes and her breezy manner, carrying an armful of late chrysanthemums from her mother-in-law's garden.

"S wonderful!" "S marvelous!" she sang out as she bounded into the room. Where did you get the idea for a stunt like that?"

She hopped onto the bed, landing squarely on Byrd's foot.

Then her eyes fell on Byrd's short hair.

"And your hair! It's simply gorgeous, gorgeous! Looks like yellow taffy! Gee, I wonder what did you say? Say, your old beau Ben enuff called to say that he wanted to give you lessons the rest of your life for nothing! He thinks you're the next Pavlova!"

"I'd like to try doing mine that color," said Tiny, enviously. "I've had it every color but that one."

"Why don't you?" asked Pat. "The papers could write it up this way: A blonde brunette committed suicide." She died by her own hand."

"That's the telephone rang for the 'tenth time."

"It's one of those society reporters," said Tiny, impatiently. "The papers have been calling me up all morning. They want to get some stories about the Russian dancers. I don't know what to tell them."

"Tell them they've gone to Chicago to fill an engagement," said Byrd, "and don't, for goodness sake, tell them the truth."

"Ain't it the limit the way those reporters bother you all the time?" Tiny remarked again as she started out the door.

It was the first time in Tiny's life that she had ever given a party that was considered important enough to be written up and she was truthfully impressed by it.

"People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw parties!" Pat called after her, winking at Byrd. "Well, Byrd," said Pat, consolingly, "you've got Larry going around in circles and quadrangles. He doesn't know whether he's standing on his head or his heels."

"He'd better try his heels. His head hasn't supported him yet! Even though he's tried standing on it most of the time," said Byrd, sharply.

"Aren't you being a little rough on him?" inquired Pat. "Say, here are your letters. One from dad, I think."

Byrd seized her father's first and read it aloud.

"Dear kids," she read, "I've written Larry thanking him for the check and asking an explanation I dropped dead when I got back the whole amount with interest. How come? All business in Jacksonville stopped until I hear from you."

Then she opened a second letter. A check dropped out. Nothing else. But it was a check for two hundred dollars and was signed by Larry. Byrd showed it to Pat.

"Good egg!" laughed Pat, approvingly. "I didn't think you had it in you!"

"I'm not Jim Hamilton's daughter for nothing!" laughed Byrd, as she repeated Pat's own phrase that she had used only a short time ago.

Pat went to the mirror and slipped her new felt hat over her head, completely drowning both eyes.

"They'll take you to the home for the blind if you go groping along the street," she warned her. When they came back into the room she carried two identical boxes containing flowers.

"They're from the same florist's and not a card in either of them," she remarked disgustedly.

"Tiny didn't like guessing games. She could only understand what was patent and obvious."

"And both of them must have bank accounts," she added, as she removed the flowers from their waxed wrappers, "for American beauties are twenty-four dollars a dozen."

Byrd said she didn't have the slightest idea who had sent them. "Larry may have sent one box," guessed Tiny, perplexed, "but who in Larry Nation's nation sent the other? Haven't you the slightest idea?"

Byrd shook her head.

"Mr. Polk," she said, "doesn't even know I'm sick."

As Pat banged out of the front door, she spoke to someone coming in.

Then Byrd heard a man's voice in the hall. It was Dr. Newcomb questioning Tiny, asking her how Byrd had slept and how she had felt during the morning and whether she had an appetite.

Byrd lay back among the pillows and turned her face to the wall. She shivered a little and drew the comforter up around her shoulders.

"How's the ballet dancer today?" asked Dr. Newcomb, with eyes twinkling.

He walked briskly toward the bed. Under his disarming smile, Byrd's fears slipped from her and a sudden relief surged through her body. Of course, he couldn't know!

"The only thing that ailed me, doctor," Byrd smiled up at him, "was that I needed a good sleep."

"Agreed!" he said, heartily. "This week you've got to spend all your waking hours sleeping!"

He took down the thermometer and placed it between her lips and took her pulse.

He read the thermometer with a quizzical expression narrowing his bright eyes, and for a second Byrd was again apprehensive. Then he smiled.

"All you need is a week's rest, and this is the best sanitarium I know of," he said sanily.

"Oh, I'll be all right by tomorrow," said Byrd, casually. She wished he wasn't so insistent that she stay with the Obermans. She could rest just as well at the Kellys, and there she would be away from Tiny's too solicitous attentions.

"Well, well, we'll see," he said. "I'll drop in tomorrow."

Byrd's tiny, shell-like ears strained for the words that passed between them as they stood for a minute in the hall. But she couldn't hear a word!

"I'm going to fix you up a little," Tiny announced, fanning out her tiny perfumes, powders and unguents. "Larry telephoned asking if he might stop in this afternoon."

"You needn't spend any effort fixing me up for him," said Byrd, with finality. "You'll only be wasting your time."

Oh, young lady, thought Tiny, you can't fool me.

"Now, don't get all prickly," she laughed. "Every woman wants to look her best even for the man she's giving of divorcing."

Byrd gave Tiny a quick, resentful look. She wished Tiny wouldn't say things like that. They sounded so decisive.

Tiny never made a single trip down town without visiting half the cosmetic counters, and always brought back a new line of toilet articles. Her equipment looked like Cleopatra's dressing table.

Byrd looked over the assortment of jars and bottles and lipsticks. "You've got as large an assortment of bottles as Fred has in his cellar," she laughed. "I'm afraid when you've finished with me I'll be staggering under the influence of perfume and lipstick."

Tiny massaged the delicate skin with theatrical cream, which she wiped off carefully and then began her carvings, as Byrd called it. She worked with a practiced hand, rubbing in this ointment and that lotion, dusting with this powder and touching up with rouge the little plateaus under the temples and the eyes and the point of the chin, a touch of rouge here and a cerise rod there, a light "smelling" under the eyelashes, and finally a touch of cerise on the lips.

She looked soft and enticing as she sat wrapped in Tiny's best negligee among the many boudoir pillows that Tiny had heaped about her, nestling like an anemone blossom under the garlanded satin comforter.

"Tiny couldn't guess that beneath that alluring exterior was a hard, granite-like quality that would resist the battery of emotions and arguments that Larry might bring to bear."

Tiny couldn't guess that the interview by mustering her arguments like armies in armor, to win the day for her.

Now she was being shown up. Byrd hurriedly took one glance in the mirror. But it wasn't Larry at all that stood at the door.

The Theater

D. W. Griffith, whose "Drums of Love" is at the Bijou Wednesday and Thursday, has directed pictures during his twenty years in the screen industry which have probably turned over more money than those of any other single individual.

Statistics show that Griffith has placed 439 pictures before the public at a cost of $12,834,000. The gross earnings of these, more than two-thirds of which were made prior to 1912, already have reached the stupendous figure of $56,053,000, with two still unreported.

head, Griffith's pictures must have cleared not less than $25,000,000.

Based on his last five program pictures, his average gross is $11,300,000 a picture.

Despite the tremendous profit made by Griffith he is a comparatively poor man in respect to the mounting wealth of men like Joseph Schenck, Cecil DeMille, Jesse Lasky, Carl Laemmle, Adolph Zukor and others.

Most of the money which came to Griffith from his pictures has gone back into film experimental work.

From these experiments have come the "long shot," "flash back," "close up" and many "soft focus" effects, all now indispensable to motion pictures.

Griffith made one of the first talkies. That was in 1929 when he produced "Dream Street," which was synchronized with the Kellum process.

"Dream Street" had a ten-weeks run at the Town Hall in New York City and then Griffith gave up sound when he could not get capital interested in the process.

Twenty Years '09- Ago -'29

Mr. H. L. Binder, who owns the Dreamland Picture Show, has rented the room recently occupied by the Bee Hive Store and will open the largest picture show in the city. It will have a seating capacity of 300.

The Xenia Commercial Club will hold its first meeting since last summer to devise some means of obtaining a site in this city for a postoffice.

As a result of its successful negotiations with the Howard Paper Co., which has practically decided to locate its plant in Cedarville, the Cedarville Board of Trade is now after another industry, the National Cutlery Co., at present located in Philadelphia.

NEW AUTOS RUINED WHEN TRAIN HITS TRAILER OF TRUCK

One new Chevrolet coach caught fire and burned and another was demolished when an east bound Pennsylvania passenger train struck the trailer of a truck at the Baumgardner crossing between Cedarville and Selma, two miles from Cedarville, at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

The truck cleared the crossing in safety and the unidentified driver was uninjured.

Two new Chevrolet coaches were also on the truck and the four cars were being driven from Norwood, O., in the direction of Columbus.

Witnesses said the driver stopped to shift gears before proceeding onto the crossing and it is believed the driver failed to observe the approaching train although a view of the rails in both directions is said to be unobscured.

After the truck barely cleared the tracks, the speeding train crashed into the trailer, knocking it free from the truck. One car caught fire and was destroyed while the other was wrecked. The train stopped.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

NEW AUTOS RUINED WHEN TRAIN HITS TRAILER OF TRUCK

One new Chevrolet coach caught fire and burned and another was demolished when an east bound Pennsylvania passenger train struck the trailer of a truck at the Baumgardner crossing between Cedarville and Selma, two miles from Cedarville, at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

The truck cleared the crossing in safety and the unidentified driver was uninjured.

Two new Chevrolet coaches were also on the truck and the four cars were being driven from Norwood, O., in the direction of Columbus.

Witnesses said the driver stopped to shift gears before proceeding onto the crossing and it is believed the driver failed to observe the approaching train although a view of the rails in both directions is said to be unobscured.

After the truck barely cleared the tracks, the speeding train crashed into the trailer, knocking it free from the truck. One car caught fire and was destroyed while the other was wrecked. The train stopped.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)
